ARMISTICE BOARD IS NAMED IN BERLIN

Admirals von Hintze and Meurer and Two Generals Leave to Meet Foch

Amsterdam, Nov. 6.—Germany's armistice commission, composed of Admiral Von Hintze, former Foreign Secretary; Admiral Meurer, and Generals Von Bruedell and Von Winterfeldt, left Berlin for the western front this afternoon, according to official advices received here from the German capital. It is believed that the commission will open negotiations with Marshal Foch, the allied commander-in-chief, immediately. The appointment of the commission was announced by the German government earlier in the day.

London, Nov. 6.—Revolutionary outbreaks are reported from all parts of the German empire, said an Amsterdam dispatch to the Daily Express today. Eight persons were kille dand twenty-nine were wounded in riots at Kiel.

Soldiers in the garrison at Berlin mutinied and shouted, "Down with the Kaiser!" The police fraternized with the mutineers.

It is understood that Bavaria will act separately if the armistice terms are rejected.

South Germany is in panic and there are rumors that an invasion is imminent through Austria.

The Austrian armistice terms created consternation in Berlin.

The German government has issued a statement to allay these fears, saying that there is no immediate dan-

9 GERMAN ARMIES IN DANGER

By FRANK CHARLTON.
International News Service Cable Editor.

Decisive defeat threatens the nine German armies on the western battlefront as a result of the rapid advance of the British troops in Flanders and the Franco-American advance northward from the Meuse River to the Aisne.

The "bottle neck" through which the Germans must retire is rapidly being narrowed, and the number of railway lines over which the German soldiers and their guns must be transported is fast being reduced.

The Americans have advanced over fifteen miles in their new offensive.

The British have driven ahead ten miles east of Le Quesnoy, capturing the great Mormal forest, and the French pressed on seven miles yesterday.

French troops today renewed their attack over a front of nearly 100 miles between the Sambre and the Argonne forest and another great battle is raging in Flanders.

The German base at Guise has been taken by the French, and it is believed that the allies are now in Ghent. The Germans are reported to be evacuating Brussels. The Germans, fearing an allied invasion through Austria, have begun to mass troops on the Bavarian frontier in south Germany.

About fifty miles of the western battlefront now rests on Belgian soil; approximately 170 miles of it on French soil and the balance (about 125 miles) lies in Alsace-Lorraine.

LATEST ELECTION BULLETINS

Detroit, Nov. 6.—Henry Ford, Democratic candidate for United States Senator, was only 118 votes behind Truman H. Newberry, the Republican candidate, at 11 a. m., when 286 precincts out of 359 gave Ford 105,371 and Newberry 105,589. Ford's managers, at noon today, claimed his election by 10,000.

New York, Nov. 6.—The claim that the Republicans had gained seven seats in the Senate and twenty-six in the House in yesterday's election was made here today by Republican National Chairman Hays. He declared this would give the Republicans a majority of three in the Senate and thirty-five in the House.

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 6.—Incomplete returns show Joseph W. Folk has been defeated for the United States senatorship. Selden P. Spencer, the Republican candidate, is running far ahead of his ticket in practically all sections of the State. Folk will lose St. Louis by about 38,000. The prohibition amendment is defeated.

Cleveland, Nov. 6.—Latest unofficial returns (incomplete) indicate that Governor James M. Cox, Democrat, has defeated former Governor Frank B. Willis, Republican, for the governorship of Ohio, and that the "drys" have carried the State.

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 6.—Champ Clark, Speaker of the House, apparently has been re-elected Congressman from the Ninth Missouri District over B. H. Dyer, Republican candidate. Virtually complete returns indicate Clark has pulled through.

Peter F. Tague and John F. Fitzgerald today have both petitioned the Election Commissioners for a recount in all wards of the Tenth Congressional District.

Concord, N. H., Nov. 6.—John B. Jameson, Democratic candidate for United States Senator, who was defeated yesterday by George H. Moses by 1,100 votes, announced this afternoon that he will ask for a recount. Ballot boxes are being guarded.

DEMOCRATS SAY HOUSE IS SAFE

The Republican National Committee issued a statement at New York today claiming a sure majority of five in the United States Senate.

This Republican assertion followed a statement by the Democratic National Committee at Washington, claiming 49 Senators for the Administration Party, conceding 37 to the Republicans and holding 10 seats still doubtful.

The Democratic National Committee, in the same statement, put the House prospect thus:

Democrats elected	217
Conceded to Republicans	206

G. O. P. CLAIMS SENATE.

The statement by the Republican National Committee, claiming a Senate majority, was as follows:

"We have a certain majority of five and possibly six in the United States Senate.

"Before the election the Senate stood: Democrats, 52; Republicans, 44. We carried and made a gain of one each in the following States:

"New Hampshire, Delaware, Illinois, Kansas, Idaho, Colorado, Missouri and Montana. We lost one in Massachusetts, which reduces our gain to seven. Kentucky is still in doubt, with odds favoring the Republicans. Nevada is still in doubt and the chances there are fifty-fifty."

CLEAN SWEEP IN INDIANA.

Chairman Hays of the Republican National Committee, hired Washington barber before news that Indiana would send a solid delegation of thirteen Republicans to the House, or a gain of four, Ohio's delegation would consist of fifteen Republicans to seven Democrats a gain of six; that Kansas would stand seven to one; and that Nebraska and Iowa would send solid delegations of six and eight respectively. Minnisota, Hays said, had returned eight Republicans to

SOLDIERS' VOTE MAY NAME N. Y. GOVERNOR

New York, Nov. 6.—Alfred E. Smith, Democratic candidate for Governor, has a lead over Governor Charles S. Whitman of 32,000 votes, according to latest returns giving the complete vote in New York city and with 445 up-State districts missing.

Smith's plurality in Greater city is 345,661 as against 348,61 votes by which he carried city for Governor 332,990 for Whitman.

The missing vote, which is estimated at 45,000, is expected to play an important part in deciding the final result. The Democrats are claiming two-thirds of this vote.

Statements were issued from both the headquarters of Smith and Whitman claiming victory today. Smith's managers said he would win by a plurality of 2,100, while Whitman's headquarters claimed victory by 15,000.

Germany Must Indemnify Allied Civilians for Her Ruthless Destructions

By JOHN EDWIN NEVIN,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Washington, Nov. 6.—Germany today knows what to expect at the hands of the allies. The Austrian armistice terms indicate what is contained in the corresponding terms framed for the Teutonic empire, now in the hands of Field Marshal Foch. The peace terms available now, but subject to change if the fighting continues, also are outlined.

To gain peace Germany must indemnify the civilian population of the allies for wanton destruction through operations beyond the pale of international law by land, on and under the seas and in the air.

The supreme war council at Versailles has made it clear to Germany what to expect.

WARNING OF RIGID TERMS.

As was exclusively pointed out in these dispatches ten days ago, the armistice terms are preceded by a frank warning to Germany that she must accept a dictated peace, and the form which such a peace is to take is frankly set forth. It will follow President Wilson's now famous terms, with that section referring to the freedom of the seas cleared up and the sections concerning restoration framed so that Germany will pay, and pay well, for her outlawry.

It is not expected that there will be any action for at least thirty-six hours. The official notification to Germany that she can have peace on the Wilson terms, and with the provisions of these terms cleared up for Teutonic understanding, and that the armistice terms are on call with Field Marshal Foch, were put on the direct cable yesterday. They reached Berne today. It is assumed that they were immediately sent forward via the land lines to Berlin, where the Swiss minister will present them to the German Foreign Office. Then considerable will begin by the German cabinet and the military control. Should they decide to accept the armistice terms, to consider them with the memorandum of explanation of the peace terms, they will at once notify Marshal Foch where their military representative, who, it is understood here, is to be General von Winterfeldt, will present himself to receive them.

HAS SHORING CONTINUES.

All this will take time, and officials will not be surprised if it is well along toward the end of this week before the German program will be in operation.

Meanwhile, the operations of the allied armies along the western front from the North Sea to the Swiss frontier are being pressed to the utmost. The German military resistance is being steadily broken. All official reports reaching this city show conclusively that the German army is giving way under the strain. There are no longer fresh reserves available to carry on the fighting. Divisions that are cut to pieces are reformed with others that have met a like fate.

Meanwhile, the great, relentless military machine of Field Marshal Foch moves on steadily, inexorably, pressing the Germans back at all points and breaking and demoralizing all resistance.

SOME HOPE FOR DELAY.

The military situation today is such that officials here almost hope Germany will refuse to accept the terms of armistice and peace. Officials declare that in ten days the fighting will be far into German territory and that certain of Germany's cities will have been well battered by bombardment from allied big guns, including the great naval guns of the United States, and from the air. But it is pointed out that the German people at last realize their danger and that the pressure to force a conclusion of peace on any available terms is now being exerted on the government from every party except the extreme military faction.

The military element is expected to make one stupendous appeal for a continuation of resistance, because of the realization that not alone will Germany be compelled to surrender at least one-half of her army equipment, her submarines, battle cruisers and certain units of her dreadnought fleet, and open her railways and waterways to the allies to get an armistice, but that she will be compelled to pay a fabulous indemnity to gain peace.

EXPECT HOWL FROM PEOPLE.

How successful they will be remains to be seen. Most officials here believe there will be a series of general protest meetings fathered by the extreme militarists and that these will be followed by a concerted demand by the radicals and commercial leaders that the peace terms be agreed on.

All this will take time, however, and meanwhile there is the possibility that the allies will score such a military success that an unconditional surrender will be forced in the field.

Clemenceau Declares Germans Must Surrender Before Getting Armistice

Paris, Nov. 5.—That Germany must surrender unconditionally before there will be any armistice was made plain by Premier Clemenceau in his speech in the Chamber of Deputies.

M. Clemenceau announced that the terms had been agreed upon and that they had been sent to President Wilson.

"The spirit of this armistice is the same as the three others," said the Premier. "We have only followed President Wilson in his responses to Germany, namely, securing the safety of our troops. We are maintaining military superiority in case of a resumption of hostilities. But finally, the intention is to disarm the enemy and so far as possible prevent him from a resumption of fighting."

The Premier declared that the allies already have won the war. This brought the deputies to their feet cheering.

"We have to wait for peace a little longer, but the fate of the peoples is already fixed," he continued.

Clemenceau appealed for the support of all political parties.

Foreign Minister Stephen Pichon this point declared it would be contrary to the national interests to attempt to make it appear that there is any difference between the views of the government and the fourteen principles laid down by President Wilson. He refused to be drawn into debate on

KAISER'S PROTECTING WALL OF STEEL AND CONCRETE

The huge fortress system of Germany through which the Allies must batter down if Germany elects to fight on is up-to-date in every particular. More than half of the great forts are concentrated on the western border and along the North Sea. Land fortifications of the first class are marked (A); those of the second class, (B). Naval bases are indicated by (C).

GERMANY MAY DECIDE TO FIGHT ON

Germany may decide to withdraw behind her frontiers and fight on, hoping against hope.

In case she does, what are her frontier defences? What are the chief links in the iron chain which Germany has welded against invasion? Also, what and where are the interior defences at strategic points?

Germany's frontier and interior defortification points and naval bases. Nearly one-third of these are located on the Franco-Belgian frontier and up and down the Rhine valley, their great guns frowning westward toward France and menfed reinforcements.

The total German frontier extends 4,209 miles, made up as follows:

BOUNDARIES.	MILES.

SOUTH.
Austria	1,042

At the beginning of the war Germany was divided into ten "fortress districts," each district included a certain area with a number of fortified points, proportioned to the estimated needs of the district. The western districts, for example, were given the preponderance of defence points on account of France.

The ten fortress districts comprise a total of thirty-seven fortified places. In the following list first class fortresses are marked (a), those designed for railway protection are marked (b) and coast fortresses (c):

Germany's naval bases include:

GUARDS CANAL.

Kiel, the first class fortress on the Baltic guarding the eastern end of the Kiel Canal.

Cuxhaven, the coast defence point on the North Sea, guarding the westward approach to the Kiel Canal.

Wilhelmshaven, on the North Sea.

Sonderberg, on the Alsen Island, off the northwest shore of Schleswig.

Danzig, the big West Prussian fortified seaport on the Baltic coast, where the Vistula empties into the Gulf of Danzig.

To these naval bases proper must be added the Kiel Canal itself, the sixty-mile inland waterway which furnishes passage for German war vessels from the North Sea to the Baltic.

The German fortresses of the first class are mainly, especially those like Metz and Strassburg, guarding the roads to France.

Final German Disaster Now Threatening Near Sedan, Where French Surrendered

By NEWTON C. PARKE,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Paris, Nov. 6.—Disaster is threatening the German armies at Sedan similar to that which overtook the French at the same place in 1870. The situation arises solely from military developments and irrespective of the Austro-Hungarian menace.

The Americans are breaking the last stand of the Germans on the Meuse River and are only seventy-two miles from Liege, the great Belgian fortress which the Germans will utilize for the defence of their frontier on the Belgian side.

The newspapers today carried big headlines rejoicing over the German retreat, and the spirit of the people was reflected in the Chamber of Deputies when Premier Clemenceau made his appearance and was given a great ovation by the members.

The British and Belgians on the Flanders front have reached Ghent and are only seventy-five miles from Liege.

FRENCH SWEEP EAST OVER 100 MILE FRONT

Paris, Nov. 6.—French troops attacked over a front of nearly 100 miles today, assailing German positions all the way from the Sambre River to the Argonne forest, the War Office announced. Contact was maintained with German rear guards throughout the night.

A number of additional villages were taken in the French advance. The text of the communique follows:

"We have maintained fighting contact throughout the night with enemy rear guards and the Germans are continuing their retreat on the whole front.

"Early this morning we renewed our progress. We have occupied Barry to the east of the Samre River. North of Marle the French have advanced beyond Marfontaine (less than six miles from the vitally important German base Vervains).

"Allied troops co-operating with the French have taken Le Thuel and have reached the Hurtaut, southeast of Mont Cornet.

"West of Rethel we have penetrated Parroy on the northern bank of the Aisne river.

"Small detachments of our forces have crossed the Aisne at numerous places between Rethel and Attigny.

"Further to the right we have reached the outskirts of Lamats. We have pressed forward to the border of Sanzine, northeast of Chesne."

British Pass Strategic Forest of Mormal and Press on to Maubeuge

By International News Service.

London, Nov. 6. — British troops have passed the great strategic Mormal forest in northern France, the War Office announced.

North of the Sambre the Avesnes-Bavay road has been reached.

Progress has been made west of Bavay, where the British are pressing toward the fortress of Maubeuge.

The text of the official report follows:

"We have advanced beyond the Mormal forest.

"North of the Sambre we have crossed the Avesnes-Bavay road.

"We made progress west of Bavay, capturing some prisoners."

The Germans are retreating along a front of seventy miles, and east of Valenciennes have been pushed across the Belgian frontier by the British.

Haig's men are now two miles east of Bavai and are still making progress, though the Germans are fighting hard to retard the British advance and cover the retirement of the main Teuton forces in this sector.

From east of the Mormal forest, the last of the great natural obstacles on the road to the fortress of Maubeuge and now in the hands of Canadian and Australian troops, the British line runs through the Bois de Mouvron down to a point two miles east of Guise, to Salna, to Clermont, to Chateau-Porcien, at which point contact with the French forces is effected.

The French, operating with the British, have advanced a mile and are now holding the road from Stenay to Lethesne. The town of Stenay, key to Sedan, is in possession of the Americans. Pershing's men, in a strong drive on both banks of the Meuse, pushed the enemy back between three and four miles and are now within striking distance of Sedan, the pivot upon which the German High Command is swinging its whole retreat.

Paris, Nov. 6.—Th War Office announces the capture of the important town of Guise, 4,000 prisoners and sixty guns of large calibre by the French army operating between the Argonne and the Sambre canal. The French advanced to a maximum depth of six miles in their drive.

All of East Boston Sends "Smiles Across the Sea."

TODAY!

AT WOOD ISLAND PARK, EAST BOSTON.

This was the time and place of the filming of the fourth Boston instalment of the greatest moving-picture serial in the world, "Smiles Across the Sea."

All East Boston relatives of boys "over there" congregated at Wood Island Park. The co-operation of Draft Boards 1 and 2 in East Boston and of local public officials resulted in the largest outpouring of soldiers' relatives thus far filmed in the big "Smiles" serial.

The Boston AMERICAN, in co-operation with the other Hearst papers throughout the nation, did its bit toward making the boys in France happy by obtaining for them moving pictures of their dear ones at home.

Relatives imagined the sheer joy with which their boys in France would greet their smiling faces in the hospitable camp huts on Christmas Day. Few missed the opportunity of sending a life-size, animated photograph of themselves to France.

(It is planned to make the "Smiles" film a substitute for the family album to the boys "over there." In it they will behold "as natural as life" the beloved forms and features of the home folks left behind.)

Personal greetings, in the form of signs and banners upon which were inscribed salutations or messages to the boys in France helped much to inspire the lads who will view the finished pictures. Relatives brought many such greetings with them.

"Close-ups" of war-brides 'and war-babies were filmed, following the taking of the big procession.

CHARLESTOWN AND SOMERVILLE soldiers' relatives will be filmed on SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 9, at 2 p. m., at the Charlestown Playground, Sullivan square.

SOUTH BOSTON relatives will be filmed at Marine Park, City Point, on Sunday, November 10. This instalment will include Wards 9 and 10 and Draft Divisions of the same numbers.

Parts of the SOUTH END, DORCHESTER and ROXBURY, included in Wards 11, 12 and 13, will take their turn before the "Smiles" camera on Wednesday, November 13, at the William Eustis Playground, Massachusetts avenue and Proctor street.

All CAMBRIDGE and ARLINGTON relatives are invited to be filmed in one great combined picture, to be made at Rindge Field, NORTH CAMBRIDGE, on Saturday afternoon, November 16.

The time and place for the filming of DORCHESTER CENTRE, ASHMONT, NEPONSET AND MATTAPAN relatives will be announced shortly.

Other appointments, at the rate of three a week, will successively include in the "Smiles" film all soldiers' relatives in Boston and suburbs.

Read the Boston AMERICAN every day to learn when your district will be filmed.

There is no expense connected with the taking of the pictures. All costs and responsibility will be assumed by William Randolph Hearst and the International Film Service, Mr. Hearst's great moving picture organization.

If the weather is inclement Wednesday's pictures will be taken on Thursday, Saturday's pictures on Monday, and Sunday's film on the Tuesday following the advertised dates.

'THINKERS' FOR LAWSON, SAYS DAUGHTER

"At least there were 20,000 independent thinkers in Massachusetts."

This was the way Mrs. James F. Lord (Marion Lawson), daughter of Thomas W. Lawson, independent candidate for United States Senator, summed up the result of the senatorial campaign which she and her sister Joan have waged these last ten days for her father, world famous financier.

In her parlor, the day after all was over, with a campaign huskiness in her voice, and dressed in negligee of pale blue silk, the excitement of all she has been a part of these last ten days still lingering, Mrs. Lord spoke out straight tall words from her shoulder, mincing not, just as one would expect of the daughter of the father she is.

"Say this the very first thing," insisted Mrs. Lord. "Many people, ignorant in their imaginings, think that my father ran for Senator; that my sister Bunny and I spent twenty hours a day at the hardest work we have ever done in our lives to divert votes from Senator Weeks to Senator Walsh; to defeat Weeks. In other words, contradict this in the most emphatic language you know how to use.

JUST WANTED TO BE SENATOR.

"My father ran for Senator because my father wanted to be Senator. And my sister and I campaigned for him because we wanted him to be Senator more than we wanted anything else in the world, just now. For we believe that no other candidate would bring to the job our father's experience and ability.

"To help elect father, we have driven through towns so many that we cannot remember the names of them. We have spoken, delivering our circulars, in backway little towns on the Cape where five or six votes was the total registered. We have come in at 2 o'clock in the morning. We have got up again at five, to be at some factory at six, so we might speak to the men as they were going into their work, not to defeat Weeks, not, by no means no, to divert votes to Walsh, but because we believed in our father, all sentimentality, all foolish affection aside. And, this morning after election, we are pleased that there are 20,000 independent thinkers in the State."

Mrs. Lord, to hear her describe her experiences, 'as had, these last ten days, such an initiation into the ways of Mr. Common Citizen, such a battling in democracy, that she has learned the world all over again.

CAMPAIGNED AT MILL GATES.

As she explained: "People have said to me: 'Now you've discovered yourself. Now you can campaign for suffrage. Now you can do more public work.' And I reply, with all the strength that is in me: 'You can never get me to campaign again unless you can, as my father says, "deliver the goods." I mean unless you can give me another candidate to work for, in whom I have the same faith as in my initial nominee.'"

A girl who has learned her father all over again, as he appears to the proletariat in overalls, with a dinner pail, told of little meetings.

"When the crowds came out of the mills I passed them father's circular. 'I've just one thing to ask of you' said I, 'read this. Think it over. And if you believe what it says give Tom Lawson your vote next Tuesday.'

"Tom's the boy,' those men in shirt sleeves said to me again and again, 'why, we never knew he was running for Senator. And who are you?'

"'I'm his daughter.' 'Good for you, he gets our vote.'

A little lady, who had not been to bed all night, weary with her labors political, spoke with prophecy, after a pause. "The reason my father was defeated," said she, "is because we had not the time, nor the newspapers, to let the people who admire and approve of him, know that he was out for Senator. Had we been able to speak to all the citizens, as we spoke to 20,000, father would have been Senator this morning."

U. S. ENGINEERS ARE HEROES OF MEUSE

By BERT FORD.

International News Service Staff Correspondent.

With the American Army North of Verdun, Nov. 5 (Night).—American day by throwing four pontoons engineers, who have played such a conspicuous part in the war, made it possible for the Americans to advance east of the Meuse River to across the river during the night.

At dawn the German observers spotted the bridges and the Hoche artillery began shelling them.

One was destroyed, but the doughboys swarmed across the others with the shells dropping all about them.

The Americans on the Meuse River have advanced over fifteen miles since the beginning of their offensive last Friday morning.

Throughout today the Yankees went ahead with increased enthusiasm, everywhere overcoming enemy resistance.

(The advance on Tuesday reached four miles.)

The Yankees drove the retreating Germans through the Meuse valley like sheep. German divisions were hurriedly thrown into the struggle in a futile effort to hold up the Americans.

Our guns now dominate important German strongholds and vital German lines of communication.

SOLDIER HURT IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Three soldiers from Camp Devens are in Waltham Hospital suffering from cuts and contusions, four more were injured, but proceeded to camp, and a chauffeur severely cut and bruised about the face as the result of an accident in Lexington today, when a seven-passenger car left the road, plunged through a wire fence and overturned.

The car was owned by James B. Cunningham of Pleasant street, Ayer, and was driven by Maurice Bell of No. 633 Harrison avenue, Boston. It was headed toward Ayer, with the soldiers as passengers bound for Camp Devens.

When the machine struck a curve just beyond Warren street it left the road and plunged into the fence.

Bell was treated by a Lexington doctor, who took five stitches in his face. The three men who were taken to the hospital were Corporal George L. Hoel, Corporal F. J. Moynihan and a Chinese cook, Chin.

Automobiles attracted to the scene by the accident took the other four men on to Camp Devens, where their minor cuts and bruises were treated.

LANSING SENDS MESSAGE TO RUMANIA

By JOHN EDWIN NEVIN,

International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Washington, Nov. 6—That the United States intends that those nations which were despoiled by Germany, are to be given every possible consideration at the coming peace conference was made plain here this afternoon, Secretary of State Robert Lansing in a communication to the charge d'affaires ad interim of Rumania told him that the claims of that nation will be given complete consideration at the peace council.

This assurance from Secretary Lansing, officials said, meant that so far as Russia and the Ukraine are concerned they also will not have held against them the fact that they were driven by force to make a shameful peace with Germany.

BOLSHEVIKI NOT RECOGNIZED.

However it also was pointed out that in the case of Russia the present Bolshevik government never has been recognized so that when that nation's affairs come up for consideration it is expected that it will be a real Russian government, whose interests will be safeguarded.

The text of today's communication was as follows:

"Sir:

"The government of the United States has constantly had in mind the future welfare and integrity of Rumania as a free and independent country and prior to the existence of a state of war between the United States and Austria-Hungary a message of sympathy and appreciation was sent by the President to the King of Rumania.

CONDITIONS CHANGED.

"Conditions have changed since that time, and the President accordingly desires me to inform you that the government of the United States is not unmindful of the aspirations of the Rumanian people without as well as within the boundaries of the kingdom. It has witnessed their struggles and sufferings and sacrifices in the cause of freedom from their enemies and their oppressors. With the spirit of national unity and the aspirations of the Rumanians everywhere the government of the United States deeply sympathizes and will not neglect at the proper time to exert its influence that the just political and territorial rights of the Rumanian people may be obtained and made secure from all foreign aggression.

"Accept, sir, the renewed assurances of my high consideration.

(Signed) "ROBERT LANSING."

The American legation at Jassy was instructed by cable to convey the foregoing message to the Rumanian government.

"A good soldier is better than a human derelict in the State penitentiary," is the judge's opinion.

Lawrence Street Department to Close; No Funds

Lawrence, Nov. 6.—Alderman John F. Finnegan, Commissioner of Engineering, announced that his department would close down today because of lack of money in the city treasury.

He stated his appropriation has been used up and that from now until the new year there will be no street department employes.

This means no snow plows, and residents of this city will have to walk through piles of snow if money is not provided between now and the stormy days.

WASTE OF SUGAR

THE following bulletin was among the most forceful and effective bits of conservation propaganda at the New York Food Show last month. It was put out by the National Sugar Refining Company of New Jersey:

"Save the waste!

"One hundred million cups coffee used daily in United States.

"Seventy million cups tea used daily in United States.

"One hundred and seventy million cups tea and coffee.

"If even an average of half a teaspoonful of sugar per cup is left undissolved at the bottom of cups of tea and coffee the waste would be 1,700,000 pounds of sugar daily.

"Stir your sugar until it dissolves. It's estimated that one-third to one-half of all sugars used in homes is used in tea and coffee. Think it over—how is it in your home? Isn't there a chance for saving?"

CHILDREN ASKED TO AID XMAS FUND DRIVE

Buttons to Be Given to Those Who Help American Buy Dinners

Xmas Buttons for Boys and Girls Who Aid Fund

Boys and girls, don't you want to collect dimes and quarters for the Xmas Basket Fund?

This fund will provide Christmas dinners for hundreds of poor widows and children.

The AMERICAN will give a button to each boy and girl who brings or sends a contribution.

Get one of these buttons early because soon everybody will be wearing them.

Bring or send contributions to the Boston AMERICAN Christmas Basket Fund, Boston ADVERTISER-AMERICAN office, Little Building, Boylston street.

Boys and girls of Boston!

Here is an opportunity to help, through the Boston AMERICAN'S Christmas Basket Fund to relieve the condition of hundreds of poor widows and little children in this city by giving them a dinner on Christmas Day.

The Boston AMERICAN has helped these poor people every Christmas for five years with the assistance of the generous public, and this year it asks the boys and girls to help, too.

"Will you go out in your neighborhood and collect dimes and quarters for these poor people?

If you will, the Boston AMERICAN will give a you a button to wear which will show that you belong to the big Christmas club which will be formed.

ALL SURE TO HELP.

In a very few days these buttons will be worn by hundreds of boys and girls. In a short time the boy or girl who does not wear one will be in the minority, because every boy and girl who is once brought to realize what poverty there is in this city and what a number of poor families there are who will have no Christmas dinner unless somebody helps, will immediately jump in and do what they can.

Each boy or girl who brings in or sends in a contribution of ten cents or over will receive a button. Contributions should be brought or sent to the Christmas Basket Fund Department, in the Little Building, Boylston street.

Bring in your dimes, quarters, or dollars if you can, and help swell this fund. You boys and girls who have not thought about your Christmas dinner at all, except to realize in a vague way that you will have one, and a good one, must not forget the hundreds of children right here in Boston who will not.

Letters by the dozens are coming into the office from poor little waifs whose fathers have died from influenza or are fighting in France asking that one day in the year at least they may have enough to eat.

Some of these letters will be published from time to time, and any boy or girl who can read them and not do something to help will be hard-hearted indeed. But there are few of that kind in this city.

The good work done by the members of the peach stone brigade in gathering peach stones for gas masks proves that.

CHILDREN'S AID IMPORTANT.

And if every boy and girl who gathered peach stones would go out and collect 25 cents for this fund, the money would provide Christmas Baskets for hundreds of poor children. The gas masks were important, very important to our soldiers, but pretty soon we hope there will be no need of gas masks.

Let every boy and girl who has a relative or friend fighting in France, show his gratitude at the almost certain end of the war in a short time, by doing this charitable act for the poor children in his own city.

Contributions for the Christmas Basket Fund from grown-ups continue to arrive, but the need this year is greater than ever as the poor are poorer than ever in their lives.

Give a basket and make some poor child happy.

To the People of Metropolitan Boston

The United War Work Campaign will ask the people of this country, during the week beginning November 11th, to contribute to a fund to provide the comforts, conveniences and pleasures supplied to each man and woman in military or naval service.

The seven organizations, representing the United War Work Campaign, are the

Young Men's Christian Association
Young Women's Christian Association
National Catholic War Council—K. of C.
Jewish Welfare Board
American Library Association
War Camp Community Service
Salvation Army

Instead of coming to the public with seven separate appeals for funds, they have submitted their budgets to President Wilson and have agreed to work together in one drive, from the proceeds of which each will receive a definite percentage for its special uses.

The total sum asked for in the United States is $170,500,000. Metropolitan Boston's quota is $5,000,000. Toward the raising of this quota and in behalf of the continuance and extension of the splendid work of these organizations, we ask the co-operation of every man, woman and child within this area.

These organizations work in a spirit of emulation, not of rivalry. They labor as American institutions and not as Sectarian societies. In the same spirit that they stand together to support the morale of our fighting men, let us here at home stand together in the support of the United War Work Campaign.

FRANK W. REMICK, Chairman,
Boston Metropolitan Division,
United War Work Campaign.

Beginning Monday, November 11th, canvassers will personally solicit every resident of Metropolitan Boston. Mail contributions to Alfred L. Aiken, Treasurer, care National Shawmut Bank, Boston.

ALLIED FLEET QUITS DARDANELLES WITH VICTORY IN SIGHT

Turkish Forts Were Running Short of Ammunition When Battleships Ceased Operations

RETURNS TO CONSTANTINOPLE

I returned to Constantinople that evening, and two days afterwards, on March 18th, the allied fleet made its greatest attack. As all the world knows, that attack proved disastrous to the allies. The outcome was the sinking of the Bouvret, the Ocean and the Irresistible and the serious crippling of four other vessels.

Of the sixteen ships engaged in this battle of the 18th, seven were thus put temporarily or permanently out of action. Naturally the Germans and Turks rejoiced over this victory. The police went around, and ordered each householder to display a prescribed number of flags in honor of the event.

The Turkish people have so little spontaneous patriotism or enthusiasm of any kind that they would never decorate their establishments without such definite orders. As a matter of fact, neither Germans nor Turks regarded this celebration too seriously, for they were not yet persuaded that they had really won a victory.

Most still believed that the allied fleets would succeed in forcing their way through. The only question, they said, was whether the entente was ready to sacrifice the necessary number of ships. Neither Wangenheim nor Pallavicini believed that the disastrous experience of the 18th would end the naval attack, and for days they anxiously waited for the fleet to return.

The high tension lasted for days and weeks after the repulse of the 18th. We were still momentarily expecting the renewal of the attack. But the great armada never returned.

Should it have come back? Could the allied ships really have captured Constantinople? I am constantly asked this question. As a layman my own opinion can have little value, but I have quoted the opinions of the German generals and admirals, and of the Turks — practically all of whom, except Enver, believed that the enterprise would succeed, and I am half inclined to believe that Enver's attitude was merely a case of graveyard whistling. In what I now have to say on this point, therefore, I wish it understood that I am giving not my own views, but merely those of the officials then in Turkey who were best qualified to judge.

ENVER PUT UP A BLUFF.

Enver had told me, in our talk on the deck of the Turuk, that he had "plenty of guns—plenty of ammunition." But this statement was not true. A glimpse at the map will show why Turkey was not receiving munitions from Germany or Austria at that time. The fact was that Turkey was just as completely isolated from her allies then as was Russia.

There were two railroad lines leading from Constantinople to Germany. One went by way of Bulgaria and Serbia. Bulgaria was then not an ally; even though she had winked at the passage of guns and shells, this line could not have been used, since Serbia, which controlled the vital link extending from Nish to Belgrade, was still intact.

The other railroad line went through Rumania, by way of Bucharest. This route was independent of Serbia, and, had the Rumanian government consented, it would have formed a clear route from the Krupps to the Dardanelles. The fact that munitions could be sent with the connivance of the Ruman government perhaps accounts for the suspicion that guns and shells were going by that route. Day after day the French and British ministers protested at Bucharest against this alleged violation of neutrality, only to be met with angry denials that the Germans were using this line.

There is no doubt now that the Rumanian government was perfectly honorable in making these denials. It is not unlikely that the Germans themselves started all these stories, merely to fool the allied fleet into the belief that their supplies were inexhaustible.

FORTS LACKED AMMUNITION.

Let us suppose that the allies had returned, say on the morning of the 19th—what would have happened? The one overwhelming fact is that the fortifications were very short of ammunition. They had almost reached the limit of their resisting power when the British fleet passed out on the afternoon of the 18th. I had secured permission for Mr. George A. Schreiner, the well-known American correspondent of the Associated Press, to visit the Dardanelles on this occasion.

On the night of the 18th, this correspondent discussed the situation with General Mertens, who was the chief technical officer at the straits. General Mertens admitted that the outlook was very discouraging for the defence.

"We expect that the British will come back early tomorrow morning," he said, "and if they do, we may be able to hold out for a few hours."

PROBLEM WAS SIMPLE.

General Mertens did not declare in so many words that the ammunition was practically exhausted, but Mr. Schreiner discovered that such was the case. The fact was that Fort Hamidie, the most powerful defence on the Asiatic side, had just seventeen armor-piercing shells left, while at Kilid-ul-Bahr, which was the main defence on the European side, there were precisely ten.

"I should advise you to get up at 6 o'clock tomorrow morning," said General Mertens, "and take to the Anatolian hills. That's what we are going to do."

The troops at all the fortifications had their orders to man the guns until the last shell had been fired and then to abandon the forts.

Once these defences became helpless the problem of the allied fleet would have been a simple one. The only bar to their progress would have been the mine field, which stretched from a point about two miles north of Krankeui to Kilid-ul-Bahr. But the allied fleet had plenty of minesweepers, which could have made a channel in a few hours. North of Tchanak, as I have already explained, there were a few guns, but they were of the 1878 model, and could not discharge projectiles that could pierce modern armor plate.

North of Point Nagara there were only two batteries, and both dated from 1853. Thus, once having silenced the outer straits, there was nothing to bar the passage to Constantinople except the German and Turkish warships. The Goeben was the only first-class fighting ship in either fleet, and it would not have lasted long against the Queen Elizabeth. The disproportion in the strength of the opposing fleets, indeed, was so enormous that it is doubtful whether there would ever have been an engagement.

Thus the allied fleet would have appeared before Constantinople on the morning of the 20th. What would have happened then? We have heard much discussion as to whether this purely naval attack was justified.

Enver, in his conversation with me, had laid much stress on the absurdity of sending a fleet to Constantinople, supported by no adequate landing force, and much of the criticism since passed upon the Dardanelles expedition has centred on that point.

It is my opinion that this exclusively naval attack was justified. I base this judgment purely upon the political situation which then existed in Turkey. Under ordinary circumstances such an enterprise would probably have been a foolish one, but the political conditions in Constantinople then were not ordinary.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION
Get Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 17 years and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, but a healing, soothing vegetable laxative.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth"—a bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver and are constipated, you'll find quick, sure and only pleasant results from one or two little Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets at bedtime.

Thousands take one or two every night just to keep right. Try them. 10c and 25c per box. All druggists.

Women's warm dresses in unexpected styles, $15, $18.50

$15 $18.50 $18.50

Such elaborate braiding is very unusual in frocks at these prices. So is serge of this fine, soft quality. So are many little style and finishing touches about them.

Sketched at left is elaborately braided panel dress with accordion plaited skirt. $15.

Sketched on right is round-necked Mandarin dress, embroidered with flat silk braid. $18.50.

Sketched in center is frock with exceptionally pretty back, generously braided with soutache and faced with geranium red satin. $18.50.

Larger women's dresses, $15

Women who wear sizes 42 to 52, too, may have good-looking wool dresses for as little as $15. One we saw has flat braid and fringed panel at back which adds height. Sleeves are sewed to separate lining—a good point, as all women understand.

Questions and answers on our new policy regarding charge accounts

Q.—Why should charge customers pay for the privilege of charging?

A.—Because a charge account is a special privilege. The store has to spend more than $100,000 more each year than it would if all purchases were paid for over the counter. This expense represents the cost of opening accounts, verifying accounts at each purchasing, making out itemized bills, postage, collectors, also interest on money invested.

Q.—Who pays this expense now?

A.—The expense of handling charge accounts is, like the expense of delivery, figured in the price of every piece of merchandise sold, and is shared by every customer, including those who pay cash.

Q.—Do not charge customers buy more freely?

A.—We do not know whether this is true. In any event, the store has no desire to encourage people to spend more money than they can afford.

Q.—Should not charge customers be a privileged class?

A.—It is the policy of this store to treat all customers alike. But if any distinction were to be made, the cash customer should be favored.

Q.—How much will the charge be for charge account business?

A.—The charge will be 50c a month for each month during which the account is used, regardless of the size of the bill. There will be no charge for months where nothing is purchased.

Q.—How will this be collected?

A.—The charge of 50c will be added to the total of each monthly bill rendered.

Q.—Supposing a bill is rendered showing credits equal to the amount of purchases?

A.—The charge of 50c will be made just the same for the use of the account.

Q.—Is it fair to charge the same for small and large accounts?

A.—Many ways of dividing the expense of charging for charge business have been considered, and the uniform monthly charge has been adopted as the one working most fairly to all concerned. It costs just as much to handle a small charge item as a large one. It costs less to handle one large item than a number of small items amounting to the same total.

The general idea of this rule is to place expenses so that they fall on the customers who create these expenses, and not on others. It will mean no extra profit to the store.

The dating of the new rule ahead to December 1st was done with the idea of co-operating with the Government. Customers who do their Christmas shopping in November and avoid these new charges will be doing exactly what the Government wishes.

CONGRESS CLAIMED BY BOTH PARTIES; DEMOCRATS ARE GAINING

Early Majorities for Republican Candidates Are Sadly Cut by Late Returns

two Democrats. Connecticut four to one and Rhode Island all three.

CORRUPTION IN NEW HAMPSHIRE.

The charge that corrupt practices were resorted to by Republicans in New Hampshire was made at the Democratic headquarters today. The charge followed the receipt of telegrams from the State Democratic Committee stating that money had been sent to voters outside the State to get them to return to vote. It was also claimed that the affidavit of a Republican sheriff, bearing out the charge, was in the hands of the committee.

The Republicans have gained forty and lost six members to the House of Representatives and have gained seven Senators as against a loss of one—Weeks of Massachusetts—according to the Republican National Committee. The Republicans said that unless these estimates are based on "shoe string and delusion returned from the States.

At the same time, the Democratic National Committee claimed that they had won senatorial victories in seven States with the same number of States doubtful.

THE RIVAL CLAIMS.

Following are the detailed gains in the House, as claimed by the Republicans:

Pennsylvania, 3; Colorado, 2; Delaware, 1; Indiana, 13; Kansas, 4; one doubtful; Kentucky, 1; Maryland, 1; Michigan, 1; Missouri, 5; Nebraska, 3; Ohio, 1; New York, 3 gained and 6 lost; Washington, 1 and Wisconsin lost 3.

The Democrats claimed to have won in the senatorial fights in these States: Massachusetts, Oregon, Kentucky, Montana, Nevada and Idaho. The following States are doubtful, they said: Colorado, New Mexico, Wyoming, New Jersey, New Hampshire and Delaware.

Ray State Democracy answered President Wilson's appeal for indorsement by the electorate by electing former Governor David I. Walsh to the United States Senate by a plurality of more than 12,000 votes over Senator John W. Weeks.

BIG VOTE FOR LAWSON.

Thomas W. Lawson, the stormy petrel of Bay State politics, was a big factor, too, in Walsh's election. Lawson, running independent, cut heavily into the Weeks vote. It will be noticed that Lawson polled more than Walsh's plurality. The Dreamwold financier was out to avenge what he called the political slaughter of Governor Samuel W. McCall by the Republican machine.

New York State and city are sizzling in the stretch of a red-hot gubernatorial contest. Early today Governor Whitman had a plurality of 26,239 outside of New York city and Alfred E. Smith had a plurality of 258,424 in New York city. There were eight city districts and 562 State districts missing at that hour.

The election furnished many nation-wide surprises. Former Governor Walsh, for example, is the first Democrat to be elected from Massachusetts to the United States Senate since the Republicans swept into power before the Civil War.

McCORMICK BEATS "HAW" LEWIS.

In Illinois it appears certain that Medill McCormick, Republican and former Progressive, has beaten Senator James Hamilton Lewis, Democratic whip and generally supposed to be the President's personal representative in the upper house. Senator Lewis apparently was winning early in the race by a big vote in Cook County, but the returns available early today pointed to McCormick's election by a substantial majority.

Senator Colt, Republican, was re-elected in a hot campaign, in Rhode Island. The Republicans also elected a solid delegation of three to the House of Representatives, regaining one seat from the Democrats.

Nebraska Republicans returned to power, re-electing Senator Norris by a large majority and seating an entire State ticket.

NEW JERSEY TURNS ON WILSON.

President Wilson's appeal to New Jersey voters to send George M. Lanning and Charles Gardner Hennessey to the United States Senate failed. Governor Edge defeated Lanning for the long term by about 15,000 and David Baird won from Hennessey for the short term by 5,000.

Senator Shafroth of Colorado and Senator Saulsbury of Delaware have been defeated by their Republican opponents. In Colorado the Republicans have placed Lawrence Phipps in shafroth's seat by a majority of about 2,500. In Delaware the Republican factions got together behind Dr. L. Heisler Ball, a former United States senator, and put him over Saulsbury's pie the latter by a majority of about 1,000. Saulsbury's defeat was surprising. He was a personal friend of President Wilson.

Indiana is in the Republican column by a plurality of about 20,000. This is conceded by Democratic State leaders and candidates. Every one of Indiana's Representatives in the next Congress will be Republican.

6, O. P. SWEEP IN KANSAS.

In Kansas the Republicans returned to power by virtue of a landslide. Governor Capper, Republican, defeated Senator Thompson, Democrat, for his seat by a plurality of about 19,000. The entire Republican ticket went into office with him. The Kansas delegation in the next House will be eight Republicans. The Democrats had five of those seats in the present House. Henry J. Allen, the Republican candidate for Governor, was elected by a vote estimated at 130,000, leading the ticket. He is in France doing war work and did not return for the campaign.

There will still be one Socialist in the next House of Representatives. Meyer London was defeated for re-election in New York city, but early returns indicated Victor L. Berger, Socialist, was chosen.

Gallivan Sees Glorious Victory for President in Massachusetts' Vote

Congressman James A. Gallivan, who has been in the hands of his physicians since last Tuesday, with a very serious attack of infectious rheumatism, gave out the following statement from a sick bed:

"It appears as if President Wilson had won a glorious victory in the old Bay State. Just as the eyes of Massachusetts rallied to the call to the colors, so has the citizenship of Massachusetts answered our President's call, and I am one of those who believe that it is all for the best.

"Senator Walsh will be a commanding figure in the United States Senate. As President Wilson said in his appeal to the citizens of Massachusetts in support of Walsh, he will stand with the President at all times.

"But I for one hope that we will now adjourn politics and all get together for the purpose of ending the war now while Germany appears ready to surrender, and combine all our efforts to bring the boys back home. The Massachusetts soldier lad has been away a long time and has done a man's work in the cause of humanity.

"With the unconditional surrender of Germany, the mothers and fathers of the old Bay State will look to us who represent them in Congress to help bring back both sons as it can be arranged our valient Massachusetts boys, many of whom were among the very first on the battle line in France, and who have covered themselves and their native Commonwealth with everlasting glory.

"A grateful citizenship will await their home coming with eagerness and will meet the boys with a welcome that words can describe. Let's all has to day."

RED CROSS SENDS CALL FOR MORE SWEATERS

The Boston Metropolitan Chapter of the American Red Cross has sent out a call to all knitters to take up their needles once more and knit more sweaters for the American soldiers overseas and those about to depart overseas.

The Chapter has been asked to produce a huge quota of sweaters for the army this Winter. The number that must be provided by the end of November is 10,625. This means that the women of the Chapter territory must knit sweaters at the rate of 354 a day, including Sundays, if the total of 10,625 is to be reached.

CHARGES THIRD DEGREE PRACTICED ON CLIENT

Manchester, N. H., Nov. 6.—Representative Ferdinand Parley, a local attorney, charged that "third degree work" had been practiced on one of his clients, Philemon Valles of this city, accused of keeping liquor for sale, and quoted local police officers as saying they were "after their scalps" and would get him if they could," in the Police Court.

Valles was found guilty and appealed.

TO PROBE SANITY OF MAN WHO SPAT UPON FLAG

Fear that the loss of his wife and father during the influenza epidemic may have deranged John Fedeson of P street, South Boston, led Judge Murray to show clemency in court today. Fedeson was charged with drunkenness and also with contemptuously treating the American flag. Judge Murray placed the first charge on file and held the man in $500 on the second until Friday. He directed that an investigation be conducted in regard to his actions lately. Fedeson is alleged to have spat upon the American flag.

Berlin, N. H., Sticks to Name by Vote of 933 to 566

Berlin, N. H., Nov. 6.—The name of this city is to be retained. Although named after the capital of Germany, it will not be discarded. The vote not to change was 933 to 566. When the soldiers from this city left for Kaiser Bill's scalp they bade him adieu as it can be arranged that "From Berlin, N. H., to Berlin, Germany. Placards bearing the slogan hung on the sides of the railroad cars on which the men left. The argument of those who favored retention of the name was that it should not be changed because of the soldiers' slogan. The slogan won.

INITIATIVE IS VICTORIOUS BY 7,408 LEAD

People's Measure Wins Despite "Big Boodle's" Big "Slush Fund"

I. and R. wins by more than 7,000 votes.

The great reform amendment to the State Constitution, the Initiative and Referendum, is safe.

The total votes:

Yes 160,141
No 181,733

Majority for "Yes" 7,408.

Twenty years of effort by the progressive forces of all parties crowned with victory!

Big Boodle couldn't stop it. The reactionaries and corporations raised a slush fund of $150,000 against it. They deluged the State with fraudulent misrepresentations and scheming political tricks.

Bag-men, poison-gas squads and practical politicians were on the payroll against it.

And the people refused to be deceived or misled.

Their victory was all the more impressive because of other important reasons. About 160,000 soldier voters, fighting for democracy over there, couldn't fight and vote for it over here.

The progressive forces "left it to the people." Except for the last three days they did little to crystallize public sentiment. They knew it wasn't necessary, because the people wanted the I. and R. Meanwhile the bag-men and payroll patriots were spending the $150,000 to beat it.

Evidences of their campaign will be found in the returns from rural districts, where they sought "to play the farmer vote against the city vote."

Despite the corporations and reactionaries, with Big Boodle as their chief weapon, the I. and R. won. The people accepted the challenge of the interests and gained one of the most glorious victories in the political history of Massachusetts.

EXPECT TO NAME A SUCCESSOR TO COLEMAN

Matters of great importance to Boston are to be discussed by the United Improvement Association at the City Club tonight. The nomination committee is expected to submit the name of a candidate to succeed President George W. Coleman, now engaged in war work in Washington.

SUES FOR $2,000 FOR DAMAGED PAINTINGS

The American Express Company of Boston has been sued for $2,000 by E. A. Whitney of Stoneham. Whitney alleges that he shipped four pastel paintings by the company from Tyrone, New Mexico, to Boston and that when the paintings arrived in Boston they were damaged.

R. I. MUNITIONS PLANTS OPEN TO COLORED WOMEN

Providence, Nov. 6.—Following an inquiry ordered by Governor Beeckman it was announced that colored women would henceforth be employed in munition factories in Rhode Island. Billy Sunday made the announcement this afternoon in his tabernacle. The colored women were represented in a protest to Governor Beeckman by leading members of their race. He ordered an inquiry conducted by Mrs. Marie Michaud, a State labor investigator. Mrs. Michaud interviewed munitions manufacturers and reported that the colored women and girls would be perfectly acceptable as workers.

TO RAISE SERVICE FLAG FOR JEWISH SOLDIERS

Lawrence, Nov. 6.—Lawrence will honor its Jewish boys in the service Sunday, November 10, by unfurling a large service flag for the young men of that race in the service from this city. The first soldier from this city to give his life in the present war was Max Kaplan, a Jewish boy. Other Jewish boys who died in the service from this city are Samuel Ravich, Harry Sopris, Joseph Ashkenasy and Lieutenant Benjamin Ginsburg. James P. Horne, principal of the Lawrence High School, will be the orator on the occasion.

Grafton Street Head Quits

Milford, Nov. 6.—George N. Goddard, street commissioner of Grafton, has filed his resignation with the selectmen, to take effect at once. He resigns to accept a more lucrative position in Worcester.

LAWSON HELPS BEAT G. O. P. CANDIDATE

David I. Walsh, the plumed knight of Democracy, goes from Massachusetts—her first Democratic United States Senator—to support President Wilson.

The answer to the President's clarion call was loyal, patriotic and convincing.

Here it is:

David I. Walsh	206,271
John W. Weeks	188,639
Thomas W. Lawson	21,476
Walsh's Plurality	17,632

Richard H. Long went down to defeat gracefully and with honor. The figures tell the story. A car ago Governor McCall defeated the Democratic candidate by 80,000. Mr. Long cut the lead down by 65,000.

WILSON GAINS A FRIEND.

Briefly, Woodrow Wilson gains a friend and loses a 365-day-a-year critic in the election of Walsh and the defeat of Weeks.

The other features of the shortest but most remarkable election on record:

Lieutenant - Governor Calvin Coolidge, Republican, was elected Governor over Richard H. Long, the Framingham manufacturer, by 14,000.

The Republican State ticket was elected, as usual.

The Democrats retain four out of sixteen seats in Congress.

John F. Fitzgerald defeated Congressman Peter F. Tague by 377. There may be a recount.

Congressman George Holden Tinkham, Republican, defeated Francis J. Horgan, again, by 3,097.

Congressman Michael F. Phelan and Richard Olney carried their districts by safe margins. These two Congressmen, who have stood so firmly behind the President, received flattering indorsements in strong Republican districts.

GALLIVAN IS RE-ELECTED.

In the other Boston district, Congressman James A. Gallivan, confined to his bed and missing his first vote since he "got old enough," was elected by the customary Democratic majority.

The G. O. P. retains its long lead in the House on Beacon Hill, but appears to have lost four votes in the Senate. That being so, the Democrats will cast ten votes out of forty.

Simon Swig, Republican, one of the most interesting characters in Massachusetts politics, went down to defeat before James J. Walsh, who has tried and tried again in his district and at last reached success at the polls.

Governor Walsh's victory was a splendid personal triumph, as well as a message of approval to the Statesman of the World. He swept through Boston in old-fashioned Democratic Walsh style. The vote:

Walsh	47,573
Weeks	33,760

Cambridge, Lawrence, Dowell and other Democratic strongholds "went through" 100 per cent. for their idol, while the "rural desdricts" went unaformly strong on the Walsh-Wilson program.

Thomas W. Lawson, financier, literateur and now politician, helped to the extent of 21,476. Most of this came from Mr. Weeks. It is also reported in Republican circles that Mr. Walsh did not suffer from the friends of Governor McCall, who on the eve of election sent out that memorable message saying that while he intended to vote "straight," there was no good reason for all Republicans to follow him.

Chairman Hacon of the Republican State Committee said today that the answer to Mr. Weeks' defeat was this: "Massachusetts responded to the President." Some of the Old Guard chipped in, "and a few responded to M'Call."

Senator-elect Walsh, in his customary dignified manner, assured the voters that as United States Senator he would be, as when Governor, their servant. He and his friends attribute his victory largely to Mr. Weeks' reactionary record, as well as to his "constant nagging" of the President.

Walsh Thanks American for Aid in Victory

November 6, 1918.

To the Editor of the Boston AMERICAN:

I want to thank the Boston AMERICAN for the great help that it has given to me in my campaign for the United States Senate.

The extensive circulation of your paper has provided the way to reach the minds of the great body of our electorate. Its news columns have always been open to me for the fullest discussion of the over-shadowing issue of the campaign—the support of the Wilson administration—and its editorials have impressed upon the public mind the paramount importance of sustaining President Wilson and his policies.

DAVID I. WALSH.

WALSH GRATEFUL TO VOTERS OF STATE

United States Senator-Elect David I. Walsh issued the following statement to the voters of the Commonwealth:

"Massachusetts speaks as she has spoken in every great crisis with the voice of loyalty to the great leader who directs our country's destinies, that his arm may be strengthened in the prosecution of the war and that his authority may be unquestioned at the peace table of the nations.

"To interpret my election to the United States Senate as an emphatic protest by the people of this Commonwealth against destructive criticism of, and partisan hostility to, the President of all the people during this, the most critical period of our nation's history.

"The great power vested in me by the electorate will be used, as far as it is given to me to use it, to uphold President Wilson in his conduct of the war, in his efforts to secure a lasting peace for the world and in the formulation of a program of reconstruction which shall promote the happiness and prosperity of our people.

"I am grateful to the voters of all parties, who, regardless of political affiliations gave support to my candidacy, and I desire now in the hour when I answer the call of my duty to express the hope that my service will be of such a character as to justify the confidence and trust which Massachusetts has reposed in me."

Senator-elect Walsh will continue his law practice until it is time to go to Washington and be sworn in, on March 4. He expects there will be an extra session of Congress; in fact, he believes Congress will sit continuously until "grim-visaged war has smoothed his wrinkled front" and all the post-war problems have been ironed out.

"The statement I gave to the newspapers earlier today covers the ground, I think," he said to an AMERICAN reporter. "As to my plans for the future, I shall continue my law practice until I go to Washington on March 4 to take the oath.

"I am glad that the Initiative and Referendum went through, and I think the Boston AMERICAN ought to be well pleased over its victory."

Governor-Elect Coolidge Pledges Aid to People

Governor-elect Calvin E. Coolidge made the following statement:

"My first thought is to thank all my supporters. Of course, my election is personally gratifying. The obligations of the office of the Governor of Massachusetts are very grave. The great privilege that has come to me, however, is to enter that great office with obligations, not to particular individuals, but only to the people of the Commonwealth."

URGE NO DECREASE IN MUNITION MAKING

The Boston District Ordnance Office has received a telegram from the Chief of Ordnance at Washington urging that everything be done to keep the production of munitions up to the highest possible point. In the opinion of Washington this is no time to ease off on war production, and not until the enemy has capitulated should the slightest thought be given to the curtailment of war industry.

Ends Stubborn Coughs in a Hurry

For real effectiveness, this old home-made remedy has no equal. Simple and cheaply prepared.

You will never know how quickly a bad cough can be conquered, until you try this famous old home-made remedy. Anyone who has coughed all day and all night, will say that the immediate relief given is almost like magic. It takes but a moment to prepare, and really there is nothing better for coughs.

Into a pint bottle, put 2½ ounces of Pinex; then add plain granulated sugar syrup to make a full pint. Or you can use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup, if desired. Either way, the full pint saves about two-thirds of the money usually spent for ready-made preparations and gives you more positive, effective remedy. It keeps perfectly and tastes pleasant — children like it.

You can feel this take hold instantly, soothing and healing the membranes in all the air passages. It promptly loosens a dry, tight cough, and soon you will notice the tickling in the throat has disappear altogether. A day's use will break up an ordinary throat cold or bronchial cough, and two days will end the most obstinate cough, and relieve bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, known all the world over as a remedy for throat and chest ailments.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.—Advertisement.

Start Tomorrow and Keep It Up Every Morning

Get in the habit of drinking a glass of hot water before breakfast.

We're not here long, so let's make our stay agreeable. Let us live well, eat well, digest well, work well, sleep well, and look well. What a glorious condition to attain, and yet, how very easy it is if one will only adopt the morning inside bath.

Folks who are accustomed to feel dull and heavy when they arise, spiltting headache, stuffy front a cold, foul tongue, nasty breath, acid stomach, can, instead, feel as fresh as a daisy by opening the sluices of the system each morning and flushing out the whole of the internal poisonous stagnant matter.

Everyone, whether ailing, sick or well, should each morning, before breakfast, drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver and bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour bile and poisonous toxins. The action of hot water and limestone phosphate on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It cleans out all the sour fermentations, gases, waste and acidity and gives one a splendid appetite for breakfast.

The millions of people who are bothered with constipation, bilious spells, stomach trouble; others who have sallow skins, blood disorders and sickly complexions are urged to get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from the drug store. This will cost very little, but is sufficient to make anyone a pronounced crank on the subject of inside-bathing before breakfast.—Advertisement.

BEAUTY SPECIALIST TELLS SECRET

A Beauty Specialist Gives Simple Home Made Recipe to Darken Gray Hair.

Mrs. M. D. Gillespie, a well known beauty specialist of Kansas City, recently gave out the following statement, regarding gray hair:

"Anyone can prepare a simple mixture at home, at very little cost, that will darken gray hair, and make it soft and glossy. To a half pint of water add 1 ounce of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and ½ ounce of glycerine. These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at very little cost, or the druggist will put up for you. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. This will make a gray haired person—look twenty years younger. This is not a dye, it does not color the most delicate scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off."

FITZGERALD AND TAGUE ASK FOR A RECOUNT

Charges that Peter F. Tague's fight for election as Congressman from the Tenth District was financed by Republicans were reiterated today by Congressman-elect John F. Fitzgerald, the successful candidate, and Tague today asked for a recount.

Following the recount and hearing on Tague's fraud charges in connection with the primary vote, Mr. Fitzgerald declared that the result of yesterday's election sustained all his accusations.

"An analysis of Mr. Tague's vote proves conclusively the charges that he had made a deal with Republican leaders to get money and support for his contest, if he would cry foul-bery and fraud in Boston to blacken the name of Democracy throughout the State," said Mr. Fitzgerald.

"There is but one ward in this district which is substantially Republican. Ward 1, East Boston, and an analysis of the Republican vote there shows that Mr. Cox, the local candidate for representative, received 1,623 votes, while Mr. Peters, the Republican candidate got 249. I do not wish to say that Mr. Cox did not get a substantial number of Democratic votes, perhaps 200 or 400, but that is a good way from 249.

"Mr. Tague, on the other hand, in this ward got about 1,700 votes, largely in Republican precincts.

"In other wards of the district the Republican vote was very small, but Mr. Tague received the substantial part of it. I see by the papers that he still claims the election. My friends and supporters need not be disturbed by this assertion, because I have carefully gone into the election returns in the fifteen wards with the men in control, and thew all assure me that the count will stand—in fact, that my majority will be increased because in many precincts votes for Peter F. Tague, written in on the ballot without the word Boston, were counted for him.

"I personally believe that Mr. Tague should be given every vote whether written or pasted on, that in any way indicates the intention of the voter to support him, whether the word Boston is attached or not.

"I understand that Mr. Tague's friends disclaim any assistance from the Republicans. The recount will show who is right in this matter, and I shall be surprised if the Republican ballot is thoroughout the district will not in the vast majority of cases show Coolidge, Weeks and Tague."

Tague, running on stickers, received a vote of 6,840. The vote for Fitzgerald was 7,217.

A CHILD DOESN'T LAUGH AND PLAY IF CONSTIPATED

Look, Mother! Is tongue coated, breath feverish and stomach sour?

"California Syrup of Figs" cah't harm tender stomach, liver, bowels.

Mother! Your child isn't naturally cross and peevish. See if tongue is coated; this is a sure sign its little stomach, liver and bowels need a cleansing at once.

When listless, pale, feverish, full of cold, breath bad, throat sore, doesn't eat, sleep or act naturally, has stomach-ache, diarrhoea, remember, a gentle liver and bowel cleansing should always be the first treatment given.

Nothing equals "California Syrup of Figs" for children's ills; give a teaspoonful, and in a few hours all the foul waste, sour bile and fermenting food which is clogged in the bowels passes out of the system, and you have a well and playful child again. All children love this harmless, delicious "fruit laxative," and it never fails to effect a good "inside" cleansing. Directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups are plainly on the bottle.

Keep it handy in your home. A little given today saves a sick child tomorrow. But, get the genuine. Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," then look and see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company."—Advertisement.

For Governor — R. Livingston Beeckman, Republican, 41,215; Alberto A. Archambault, Democrat, 25,259. Plurality for Beeckman, 5,944.

State Senator from Providence—Daniel E. Geary, Democrat, 12,189; Michael H. Corrigan, Republican, 12,275.

The General Assembly stands 31 Republican Senators and 68 Republican member of the House, seven Democratic Senators and 32 Democratic members of the House.

The Republicans retain control of both branches of the city government, electing eight members of the Board of Aldermen and twenty-eight members of the City Council as against two Democratic members of the Board of Aldermen and twelve Democratic members of the City Council.

Returns from approximately 6,000 soldiers and sailors in the United States service will be counted December 10, but it is not expected they will change the result.

The two big surprises were the defeat of O'Shaunessy for senator and Green for congressman in the First District.

Senator Colt received 11,000 more votes than were cast for Henry F. Lippitt two years ago, while Peter G. Gerry received 47,048, more than 10,000 more than were cast for Mr. O'Shaunessy.

CHARGE BRIBERY IN REPUBLICAN N. H. VICTORY

Concord, N. H., Nov. 6.—President Wilson was defeated in New Hampshire as a result of the bribery and corruption of Republican leaders, according to charges made today by Alexander Murchie, chairman of the State Democratic Committee.

Murchie stated that Republicans used money and liquor to defeat the Democratic candidates for office. One Democratic leader asserted that G. O. P. leaders spent $50,000 to win in New Hampshire.

Murchie issued the following statement:

"I charge bribery and corruption on the part of Republicans in connection with the election of their candidates. I charge that votes were bought and sold in Portsmouth, home city of John H. Bartlett, Republican candidate for Governor, and that liquor was used to influence voters in favor of Republican candidates.

"Secret service agents were on duty in Portsmouth and made arrests.

"Republican committeemen were caught sending transportation to absentee voters contrary to State and national laws.

"If the revised figures show that George H. Moses, Republican, defeated John B. Jameson, Democrat, for the two-year term in the United States Senate, I will contest the election on the ground that it was secured for Moses through fraud and bribery. I am informed that liquor was improperly used in Moses' own ward in Concord."

Final newspaper figures show that Bartlet beat Martin for Governor by about 6,000; Keyes won over Reed for United States Senate six years' term by 4,000; Moses defeated Jameson for United State Senate two years' term, 1,117; Burroughs was re-elected over Rogers in the First Congressional District by 1,200 and Wason was re-elected over Lake by about 2,000.

Moses lost his wn, as strong Republican ward, to Jameson by twenty-two votes. Martin's ward here went to his opponent, Bartlett, by fifteen votes.

An analysis of the vote shows that the small towns of the State did not support the President's choice of candidates as they did him personally two years ago. The cities were with the President, but the rural vote was against him.

The Republicans will retain control of the Legislature by substantial majorities in both branches, and Governor-elect Bartlett will have official advisers in the council of his own party.

Alexander Murchie, chairman of the Democratic State Committee, stated there would be a recount.

John T. O'Dowd, Democrat, was elected sheriff of Hillsborough County, defeating Sheriff George L. Stearns.

WHY HAIR FALLS OUT

Dandruff causes a feverish irritation of the scalp, the hair roots shrink, loosen and then the hair comes out fast. To stop falling hair at once and rid the scalp of every particle of dandruff, get a small bottle of Danderine at any drug store for a few cents, pour a little in your hand and rub well into the scalp. After several applications all dandruff disappears and the hair stops coming out.—Advertisement.

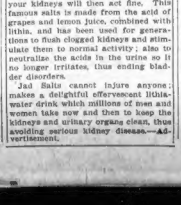
EAT LESS MEAT IF BACK HURTS

Take a glass of Salts to Flush Kidneys if bladder bothers you.



Eating meat regularly eventually produces kidney trouble in some form or other, says a well-known authority, because the uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish; clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region; rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity; also to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts cannot injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus avoiding serious kidney disease.—Advertisement.

SOLDIERS IN BIG ATHLETIC MEET AT DEVENS

By THOMAS F. PHELAN.

Camp Devens, Ayer, Nov. 6.—Enthusiasm ran high in this cantonment today, the occasion being the divisional athletic meet which opened at 9 A. M. Jollity reigned supreme. There was fun and amusement for all. The events were of the thrilling variety and the participants carried out their parts in a manner that would do justice to more seasoned athletes. There was something doing every moment in the amusement line. It was a holiday for the men, all drills, hikes and scoring of war problems having been suspended.

The events consisted of a wall-scaling contest, grenade throwing, shelter tent demonstration, gas mask exhibition for prizes, equipment race, saddling contest, knockdown and assemble escort, harnessing contest, rescue race, model platoon rifle company exercises for prizes, and machine gun contests, which were opened to members of all military units in camp.

MANY SPECIAL EVENTS.

In the athletic line there were a number of special events such as shoe and backward races, wheelbarrow contest, broncho busting, gunny sack race, wheelbarrow batting, 100-yard dash, 220-yard dash, 440-yard dash, half-mile run, running high jump, running broad jump, shotput and pole vaulting.

The athletic field where the events were pulled off was roped off. The Provost Guard preserved order. Hundreds of civilians were present as guests of the soldiers and joined in applauding the winners of the various tournaments. There was a sprinkling of women fringing the crowds watching the games from the main road.

The meet was in charge of Brigadier General J. E. Woodward. The judges were Major A. R. Hitchcock, 72d Infantry; Captain Brigham, 42d Infantry; First Lieutenant C. B. Gring, 312th Engineers; Second Lieutenant Bernard Holbrook, 42d Infantry; Second Lieutenant Battles and Second Lieutenant O. A. Finigan acted as announcers. Captain F. N. Munroe, 74th Infantry, was judge of the field events.

HOPPE GIVES EXHIBITION.

The judges of the military events were Captain F. L. Lyon, Divisional Headquarters; Captain G. A. Davies, 26th Infantry; Captain W. E. Higgins, 26th Infantry; Captain George C. Phipps, 74th Infantry; Captain J. A. Wickman, 74th Infantry; Captain R. E. Harding, 74th Infantry; Captain B. E. Morris, 54th Machine Gun Battalion; Captain G. H. Barksdale, 12th Sanitary Train, and officers from various regiments.

Willie Hoppe, champion billiardist, will give an exhibition game this evening in the Robbins Pond clubhouse. Officers and enlisted men are invited.

There will be a reception and dinner tendered to Major-General McCain and staff at the Hostess House this evening by the Young Women's Christian Association.

Classes in the non-commissioned officers' training school open tomorrow.

11,000 Enlisted Men in Navy Given Commissions

More than 11,000 navy enlisted men have received commissions for the duration of the war.

All of them have been more or less under instruction of Naval Academy graduates.

Rear-Admiral Spencer S. Wood, commanding the First Naval District, in commenting upon this growth, said:

"There will never be a time when we can dispense with the training at the Naval Academy, though we have many men appointed to commissions in the navy. We really need to have more men than ever to graduate from the Naval Academy.

200,000 YANKS MAY BE HOME CHRISTMAS

Washington, Nov. 6.—General Pershing will be able to send back 200,000 American soldiers by Christmas if the armistice terms are as similar to those accepted by Austria and if Germany accepts the terms.

There is reason to believe that the President by proclamation will declare that the "present emergency" no longer exists and will order the repatriation of the American soldiers within a reasonably short time after Germany has been made helpless to renew the war.

For the most part the American soldiers in France are enlisted for the duration of the war, or, as the draft law reads, "for the present emergency." These men can be returned when the necessity for garrison duty ceases. An army of some strength, known as the "regulars," is enlisted for approximately seven years.

Army officials appear to be unanimous in the belief that the soldiers who have seen the most active will be the first to be returned. It is pointed out that many troops have been sent to France in the past three months who have never seen the firing line of battle, and these men are anxious to be of some service to the allies.

It is generally believed that the armistice terms will call for garrisoning central strategic points on the Rhine and other points by allied troops, and that America will be asked to share in this duty.

It is an open secret that the present shipping facilities would be unable to transfer all the American force in less than one year, so that the very best that can be expected would be the return of some 200,000 veterans by Christmas.

The opinion is general here that the armistice terms will be accepted at once. Under such conditions, it is pointed out that the next step bearing upon the future of the men in the United States army service would be the forwarding of a statement signed by General Pershing, and perhaps accompanied by advices from Colonel House setting forth to the United States the results of the American intervention in Europe, together with the recommendation that the army be returned to this country and demobilized.

RADIO SCHOOL HAS PHOTOGRAPH GALLERY

U. S. Naval Radio School, Cambridge, Nov. 6.—Radio School's new photographic plant was in operation today. The call has gone forth to every man at the station to have his photo taken for the Navy Department files, the Radio School "Gallery of Honor," and for publication in the "Oscillator," the Radio School weekly newspaper.

The plant cost $2,000 and was financed by the "Oscillator." It is supervised by Lieutenant-Commander T. M. Lathrop. Gunner Joseph P. Taylor is manager of the plant.

The plant is situated in the main administration building on Cambridge Common. It is up to date in every respect.

Radio students are expected to give excellent patronage to the new photographic establishment, owing to the much higher prices charged for work of equal quality at civilian studios.

The installation of the new plant was made by Executive Officer F. W. Pennoyer.

FAME OF KANSAS FLOWER SPREADS TO SUNNY FRANCE

Camp Funston, Kan., Nov. 6.—The fame of the sunflower as the emblem of Kansas has penetrated France and is the object of much appreciation on the part of the French people, according to word received here. A letter from a member of the 5th Division received here, states that the members of the division all wear a big sunflower on an arm band, as a distinguished emblem of the division, which received its training here. The division, the first to be trained here, was trained by Major-General Leonard Wood.

BURY SURVIVOR OF WALKER FILIBUSTERERS

SAYS STRUCK BY AUTO; ASKS $15,000 DAMAGES

The Neapolitan Ice Cream Company of Cambridge has been sued for $15,000 by Hubert P. Manuel of Cambridge, a minor. He alleges he was struck by an automobile owned by the company and was severely injured.

Gosnold Democracy Loyal; "He" Votes for Long

Good for Gosnold Democracy. He voted for Long. He was true to his colors.

The Gosnold Democracy, in the wave-washed township made up of the Elizabethan Island group off Cape Cod, comprises an unterrified minority of one Gosnoldian.

He faces a hopeless Republican majority, as shown by the town vote of nineteen for Coolidge. This is an increase of two Republican votes since last year. The town Democracy maintains the status quo ante.

Former Governor David I. Walsh ran ahead of the State Democratic ticket in Gosnold, polling three votes and leaving only seventeen for Weeks. The Lawson vote, 9.

Lawson can claim no credit in Gosnold for beating Weeks. Gosnold won't stand for a split ticket.

HELD FOR FALSELY WEARING UNIFORM

Albert S. Rhienheirs, who formerly lived in this city, was held in $2,000 bail by Judge Aldrich in the United States District Court on the charge of unlawfully wearing the uniform of the United States soldier.

Rhienheirs was arrested in Albany, N. Y., by Federal authorities. The warrant for his arrest was issued by Assistant United States Attorney Jacob Dewey of Boston.

In default of bail, the defendant was committed to the East Cambridge jail.

This Day in History

THIS is the anniversary of the death, in 1872, of General Meade, victor of the battle of Gettysburg, the three-day struggle in which General Lee was beaten and which, with the victory at Vicksburg on the same day, July 4, 1863, marked the turning point of the war.

THE declining planet of war, red-faced Mars, meets the moon, the celestial representative of the sternly judicious goddess Diana, tonight, and anybody who wishes may see such augury as pleases him in the occurrence.

An Absorbing War-Time Novel Based on the Adventures of a German Spy in England

SYNOPSIS.

Lady Cranston, whose brother, Major Felstead, has been taken prisoner by the Germans, goes to London to seek news of him. She returns to her home by the sea to hear that an empty Zeppelin basket has fallen on Dutchman's Common. The commandant of the district and Helen Fairclough, Lady Cranston's friend and her brother's fiancee, discuss the unusual occurrence. When they are alone a stranger, disheveled and hungry, enters the room through a window. The women start to have him arrested when he halts them and gives them each a letter from Major Felstead. He secures from them a suit of English clothes and a promise to protect him.

CHAPTER VI.

"I HOPE you will be so good," she said, looking back, "as to spare me half an hour of your valuable time this evening. This is a subject which I must discuss with you further at once."

"As urgent as all that, eh?" Sir Henry replied, stopping to light a cigarette. "Highho! You can have the whole of my evening, dear, with the greatest of pleasure. Now then, Jimmy!"

Jimmy Dumble possessed a very red face and an extraordinary capacity for silence. He stood a yard or two inside the room, twirling his hat in his hand. Sir Henry, after the closing of the door, did not for a moment address his visitor. There was a subtle but unmistakable change in his appearance as he stood with his hands in his pockets, and a frown on his forehead, whistling softly to himself, his eyes fixed upon the door through which his wife had vanished. He swung round at last towards the telephone.

"Stand by for a moment, Jimmy, will you?" he directed.

"Aye, aye, sir!"

Sir Henry took up the receiver. He dropped his voice a little, although it was none the less distinct.

"Number one—police station, please.—Hullo there! The inspector about?—That you, Inspector?—Sir Henry Cranston speaking. Could you just step round?—Good! Tell them to show you straight into the library. You might just drop a hint to Mills about the lights, eh? Thank you."

He laid down the receiver and turned towards the fisherman.

"Well, Jimmy," he enquired, "all serene down in the village, eh?"

"So far as I have seen or heard, sir, there ain't been a word spoke as shouldn't be."

"A lazy lot they are," Sir Henry observed. "They don't look far pend the end of their noses."

"Maybe it's as well for us, sir, as they don't," was the cautious reply.

Sir Henry strolled to the further end of the room.

"Perhaps you are right, Jimmy," he admitted. "That fellow Ben Oates seems to be the only one with ideas."

"He don't keep sober long enough to give us any trouble," Dumble declared. "He began asking me questions a few days ago, and I knew he got Grice's lad on to find out which way we went last Saturday week, but that don't amount to anything. He was dead drunk for three days afterwards."

Sir Henry nodded.

"I'm not very frightened of Ben Oates, Jimmy," he confided, as he threw open the door of a large cabinet which stood against the further wall. "No strangers about, eh?"

"Not a sign of one, sir."

Sir Henry glanced towards the door and listened.

"Shall I just give the key a turn, sir?" his visitor asked.

"I don't think it is necessary," Sir Henry replied. "They've all gone up to change. Now listen to me, Jimmy."

Touched Spring

He leaned forward and touched a spring. The false back of the cabinet, with its array of flies, spinning, fishing tackle and knife, slowly rolled back. Before them stood a huge chart, wonderfully executed and, white and yellow.

"That's a marvellous piece of work, sir," the fisherman observed admiringly.

"Best thing I ever did in my life," Sir Henry agreed. "Now see here, Jimmy. We'll sail out tomorrow, or take the motor boat, according to the wind. We'll enter Langley Shallows there and pass Dead Man's Rock on the left side of the waterway, and keep straight on until we get Budden Wood on the church tower. You follow me?"

"Aye, aye, sir!"

"We make for the headland from there. You see, we shall be outside the Gidney Shallows, and I'm her twelve will pick us up. Put all the fishing tackle in the boat, and don't forget the bait. We must never lose sight of the fact, Jimmy, that the main object of our lives is to catch fish."

"That's right, sir," was the hearty assent.

"We'll be off at 7 o'clock sharp, then," Sir Henry decided.

"The tide'll be on the flow by that time," Jimmy observed, "and we'll get off from the staith breakwater. That do be a fine piece of work and no mistake," he added, as the false back of the cabinet glided slowly to its place.

Sir Henry chuckled.

"It's nothing to the one I've got on number twelve, Jimmy," he said. "I've got the seaweed on that, pretty well. You'll take a drop of whiskey on your way out?" he added. "Mills will look after you."

"I thank you kindly, sir!"

Mills answered the bell with some concern in his face.

"The inspector is here to see you, sir," he announced. "He did mention something about the lights. I'm sure we've all been most careful. Even her ladyship has only used a candle in her bedroom."

"Show the inspector in," Sir Henry directed, "and I'll hear what he has to say. And give Dumble some whiskey as he goes out, and a cigar."

"Wishing you good night, sir," the latter said, as he followed Mills. "I'll be punctual in the morning. Looks to me as though we might have good sport."

CHAPTER XXXIX.—Continued

NEAL did not come home until after seven. He brought with him a faint aroma, but I dared not ask him if he had been drinking. My face betrayed me, however, for he grinned at me impishly and said:

"Don't preach, Babbsie. Evvy called round at the office for me. We took a little spin and then stopped for a 'cup of tay'—only the 'tay' was a mint julep for mine. It gave me an appetite, too. Dinner ready?"

"It will be in a little while, dear. Jim's shaving now and putting on clean linen. His sisters are coming this evening."

Very Good News

"His sisters? Didn't know he had any folks," Neal replied indifferently. It was just on the tip of my tongue to tell him that Pat Dalton was Virginia's husband, when Jim came in fairly beaming.

"Hear the news, Neal? Virginia and Phoebe come in tonight."

It was the first time he had called Neal anything except "Hyland"—and the boy responded to his jovial tone with delight.

"Great! I'm tickled to death to hear it. I'll be glad to show the girls the town."

Jim laughed.

"Virginia is a married woman—twenty-nine, Neal—a bit old for you, eh? And Phoebe is a kid. But thanks just the same, lad."

Jim's friendliness gave Neal courage to advance a bit farther. And when we had finished serving up the dinner and were cheerfully devouring our veal chops and baked potatoes he cheerfully burst out:

"Say, Jim, could you lend me a fiver. I'm pretty near stony."

Jim scowled:

"Out of cash already, Neal? This is only Tuesday. Saturday's payday, isn't it?"

"Yep," replied Neal tersely, ready to be on the defensive.

"Well, you're flinging money around pretty fast. Sorry, but I can't encourage you in this extravagance."

"You won't give me the fiver?" asked Neal.

"No!"

My brother arose in a fury!

"I've got to have the money. I'll pay you back."

"Sorry," Jim said again grimly.

Neal turned to me with twitching lips:

"I've got to have the money. Will you lend it to me, Anne?"

I went into the bedroom, took the ten dollars Neal had given me from its hiding place and brought it in to my brother. He picked up one of the five-dollar bills and flew from the apartment. I wonder if he knew it was his own money I gave him.

Jim gazed at Neal's empty place silently for a moment. But when he spoke it was not of my brother.

"Your little girl—giving up her savings!" he said sadly. "I didn't have the money to spare, dear, but I couldn't tell Neal that. I've only a little money on hand, and since I can't offer Virginia the hospitality of my home I want to take her to a hotel and pay her bills. That's the least a man can do for his own sister."

I wanted to reply that what I had done was also the least I could do for my brother, but humiliation gripped me as I realized that it was my extravagant young brother who was costing Jim his chance to offer his sister a home.

But I dared not risk putting that into words, and Jim, too, was repressing emotions that must not be expressed. So we finished our dinner in a silence that remained unbroken until we found a safe temporary outlet in washing the dishes.

It was 9 by the time we were through. There was just time for me to make myself fine and start for the station with Jim—I wondered if he would ask me to go.

CHAPTER III.

Copyright, 1916, Star Company.

DINNER in the Brent household was a matter of state, yet the table was always daintily set, and the glass, silver and china that had been a part of Mrs. Brent's wedding furnishings shone and glistened brightly.

Mrs. Higgins did not sit at the head or foot of the table. She insisted that these seats be occupied by the two sisters. But she presided from her place at the side of the board with a quiet dignity that proved her birth and breeding.

Her years as a housekeeper and companion had not made her forget that she was also a lady.

She was not much of a talker, but listened with evident interest as the two girls chatted. She asked no questions until Honora mentioned that Arthur Bruce was coming to take them driving.

"We are to be ready at 8 o'clock," she added.

Mrs. Higgins looked up anxiously. "You two girls are not going alone with him, are you?" she queried.

"Oh, no," Honora replied. "Mrs Bruce will accompany us."

"I am glad," Mrs. Higgins approved. "I would not want you to go without a chaperon."

Mildred laughed scoffingly. "I really fail to see why we should need a chaperon when we two girls are together," she argued. "I can understand why it might not be the proper thing for a young girl to take a night ride alone with some man she does not know well. But surely there can be no possible impropriety in two girls riding with a man whom they have known for years."

Old-Fashioned Ideas

"Well—perhaps I am old-fashioned, but I think it looks rather queer, my dear," Mrs. Higgins tried to explain.

"Who's going to see us?" Mildred demanded. "However," with a light laugh, "there's no use in fussing about it now. For Mrs. Bruce is going, Honora," turning to her sister, "why did you ask to sit on the back seat with Mrs. Bruce? Do you really mean that you prefer sitting there? Won't it be rather slow music for you? Wouldn't you rather be in front with Arthur?"

"I like Mrs. Bruce very much," Honora evaded. "I just suggested my sitting with her—for I think it would be pleasanter for Arthur to have a girl in front with him."

"But you might have been that girl!" Mildred reminded her.

Honora did not reply. In her heart she was wondering if Arthur would by any chance have suggested her occupying the place by him. Then, as she recalled the look in his eyes when he saw Mildred coming up the path this afternoon she sighed inaudibly.

Of course he would want Mildred by him!

Yet it had not been consideration for her sister that had made Honora Brent propose that she herself be next to Mrs. Bruce. It had been a desire to spare Arthur the painful knowledge that Mildred had been disappointed or chagrined at the knowledge that his mother was to accompany them upon their jaunt.

Always Good Friend

For the older sister did not feel at all sure that Mildred—pretty and wilful—cared any more for Arthur Bruce than for any one of the various young men whom she knew. The two girls and Arthur had always been good friends. Since his return to Fairlands from college Honora had seen signs that the man's interest in her attractive little sister might develop into something warmer than mere friendship.

Her suspicions along this line increased as she watched the pair on the front seat during the moonlight drive across the river and up the valley.

Mrs. Bruce was an agreeable woman and a persistent talker, so Honora had abundant time for reflection while seeming to pay strict attention to her companion's conversation. The girl leaned back comfortably and drank in the beauty of the night.

It was such a night as comes sometimes early in October. The air was as clear as crystal. On the right the river stretched like a stream of molten silver; on the opposite shore the lights of the city shone yellow, and on the left were comfortable farmhouses. In many of the gardens were spread huge white sheets to protect the late flowers from a delayed and probable frost.

At first Arthur and Mildred conversed merrily. From scraps of their conversation Honora knew that their speech was only of light and trifling matters.

She was glad this was so. She did not acknowledge to herself how keen was her interest in Arthur Bruce. But she did recognize the fact that she found him more charming than heretofore.

That was but natural, she mused. Of late years she had seen him so seldom that she had not realized how he had developed, how much he had broadened and deepened.

Did Mildred appreciate these improvements in him?

An Unwelcome Thought

This question which thrust itself upon her consciousness seemed almost disloyal to her sister, and she changed the current of her reflections abruptly, and began to listen once more to what Mrs. Bruce was saying.

But the matron's remarks did not alter the trend of the girl's thoughts, for she was speaking of Arthur.

"The boy is so glad to get back to Fairlands," the mother was saying, "and it means everything to his father and me to have him here. When parents have an only child they feel that all their eggs are in one basket, as it were. It's been hard for us to have him away so much, but we hope, now that he is back, he will stay right near us. Even if he marries, I won't lose him—always supposing he marries the right kind of a girl. And of course he will."

"Of course he will," Honora echoed faintly.

She was suddenly embarrassed and at a loss as to what to say. She could not understand her own mental processes at this juncture.

To Be Continued.

Old Theatrical Days

There were no "stalls" in the theatres in the days of David Garrick, and young men of rank and fashion frequented the pit. When Garrick returned from his absence abroad people were eager to see him, and Sir George Beaumont and several others used to get admission to the pit before the doors were opened to the public by means of bribing the attendant, who bade them "be sage, as soon" as the crowd rushed in, to pretend to be in a great heat, and to wipe their faces," as if they had just been struggling for entrance. For this those days the auspicion of such favoritism would have caused a riot among the pittites.

Meteorological Boon

"BUSINESS BEFORE PLEASURE" A RIOT

By FRED J. McISAAC.

Vast fortunes have been won in the motion picture business by persons who came out of pawn shops, tailor shops, penny arcades and several other places, not unthinkable that those Clooh and Quilt merchants, Potash and Perlmutter, should invade this promising field.

In "Business Before Pleasure," at the Wilbur Theatre, we find the author Montague Glass embarked in the alluring task of showing that Potash declared that motion pictures are not a business but a diversion.

Montague Glass has created these hilarious types of the East Side Jewish merchant first seen on the Saturday Evening Post, and who has already seen his brain children succeed in two plays, "Potash and Perlmutter" and "Potash and Perlmutter in Society," and the collaboration of Jules Eckert Goodman in "Business Before Pleasure."

This piece has chalked up a year to its credit in New York and it is the New York troupe headed by Barney Bernard and Alexander Carr which is now sojourning at the Wilbur.

In common with its predecessors, "Business Before Pleasure" contains fascinating bits of dialogue between the two partners. Montague Glass hasn't lost any of his art of turning phrases and making epigrams in the uncouth phraseology of the East Side Jews.

These two individuals, totally ignorant of the film business, with everything but their nerve and borrowed money, naturally involve themselves in embarrassing situations. The play had an added interest in its intimate view of the picture game, since the general public is absorbed in everything which concerns the screen.

Feeling that a "vampire" is essential to a modern up-to-date studio, Potash and Perlmutter engage one, and immediately get into hot water with our old friends, Rosie Potash and Ruth Perlmutter, who suspect the vampire of everything on the calendar.

As this is a drama for the home folks, the vamping is a very guileless and innocent person in real life, and the villain, a vice-president of a bank and financial backer of the film company, is tripped up by Potash and Perlmutter, our heroes, when he wishes to change her point of view.

Atmosphere is given by the use of bits of the motion pictures manufactured by P. and P., by studio scenes, and a burning house, set on fire for the camera. There is also a rather tedious film showing an automobile accident in which Abe Potash gets a lame back.

The little comedy is very skillfully played. Carr and Bernard are exceedingly faithful characterizations of a type of Hebrew familiar to most of us.

Nine MacNamarry as a flamboyant vampire, who is not a fool girl when the camera crank is still, was plentifully perfect and histrionically effective.

Jennie Moscowitz, as Rosie, did some excellent character work. Edwin Mordant was a typical movie villain, while Walter Petri, C. Hooper Trask and John Petrar, as ham actors, were all amusing.

BOSTON AMERICAN LED IN VOTE RETURNS

At one time or another last night a crowd which approached 10,000 in number, received the election news from the Boston AMERICAN bulletin service. Thousands of theatregoers passed on their way to the places of amusement to watch the returns.

As is customary, the AMERICAN furnished all of the news first. Not only were up-to-the-minute reports from the Massachusetts cities and towns given, but in addition, resume of the elections in other states was furnished. New Hampshire returns were provided right up to the minute.

On such occasions as these, when bulletins are in the receipt of returns, especially during the earlier hours, the AMERICAN'S bulletin expert, James Gibson, assembled those assembled with figures of recent and early polling and past returns. The Boston AMERICAN service was, as usual, complete, accurate and first under the wire.

LONG THANKS VOTERS FOR THEIR SUPPORT

Richard H. Long, defeated candidate for Governor, made this statement today: "A majority of the voters of Massachusetts have declared their preference for Mr. Coolidge for governor of the Commonwealth. I wish to take this opportunity of extending my thanks and appreciation to the members of my party and to the independent voters who cast their ballots for me yesterday. I am very grateful for the confidence shown by so many citizens. I also wish to thank the press for the liberal treatment of my candidacy in the campaign."

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTS

DALEY WILL SHIFT TO TACKLE

Harvard Captain Goes to Rush-line for Tufts' Game—Crudup Showing Sterling Form

Several shifts in the Harvard S. A. T. C. lineup for the Tufts game Saturday were to be made this afternoon when the Crimson eleven resumed practice in the Stadium.

Captain Daley, whose time has been spent chiefly in coaching, has decided to play a tackle position Saturdey. His 160 pounds and former experience are being considered of more benefit in the rushline than on one of the wings.

Bert Crudup of last year's Rindge team has been placed at tackle, and will probably be started there against Tufts. Crudup uses his hands well and looks like the regular man for the position.

Stan Coleman has also been placed at guard on the first eleven. He was a member of last year's Informal eleven, and also rowed on the Crimson varsity team which defeated Princeton and Yale last Spring.

CLOSE TILT FOR QUARTER.

Art Conlon and Ted Bourguignon are running head and head for quarterback and the least slip will mean disaster to the man who pulls it. Conlon has a few pounds on the former Rindge captain, but will have to keep on the jump all the way to land the berth.

Coach Donovan will not select his backs until Friday. Murphy of Rindge, Carter of Swampscott and Flaxer and Ratcliffe, a pair of Chicago school boys, are all in the running.

Frank Righter, another one of the backs, and Austin Blair, a New York youth, are both shining in chucking forward passes, and consequently must be given consideration.

The sessions in the Stadium are practically secret. A broken down army biplane has caused a guard to be thrown about Soldiers Field and only employes and members of Harvard's military corps are admitted.

NO SWITCH IN HOURS.

President Lowell braved the sentry, who promptly and respectfully presented arms. Prexy has had encounters with other sentries at Cambridge since the war started that have not ended so happily, 'tis said.

What practice the Harvard squad is able to get must be done in the afternoon hours. The military authorities are opposed to granting the players any specific privileges so that they can work together.

Some of the men have arranged to shift their courses from afternoon to morning, and this is expeced to help solve the problem of how a team is to be developed to meet Tufts and Brown on even terms.

Harvard coaches thus far are steering clear of Soldiers Field. One or two veteran mentors could do a world of good in fitting out the eleven for Saturday's game.

Twenty-one Football Games Already Booked for Sports' Drive for War Work Fund

Football will be the big thing in the United War Work sport drive, as is evidenced from the program of games for the big week which has already been approved by the national athletic committee in New York.

Some twenty-one games are on the list, and as many more could be arranged if there were fields for playing them.

The big game hereabouts will be that between Harvard Radio School and Camp Devens, arranged by Rear Admiral Spencer S. Wood and Major-General Hugh L. McCain, commandants respectively of the navy and army hereabouts.

Following is the list of college and service games already scheduled:

November 9—Newport Naval Reserves vs. Harvard Radio School, at Newport; Mount St. Mary's vs. Gettysburg, at Emmitsburg, Md.; Westminster vs. Rockville Normal, at Fulton, Mo.; Maine vs. Rockville Naval Reserves, at Orono; Penn State vs. Rutgers, at State College; St. Louis University vs. Sewanee, at St. Louis.

November 15—Parsons College vs. Iowa Wesleyan, at Mount Pleasant, Ia.

November 16—Newport Naval Station vs. Pelham Bay Naval Station, at Yale Bowl; Iowa State Teachers vs. Fourth Depot Brigade, at Cedar Falls, Ia.; Dickinson College vs. United States General Hospital No. 3, at Carlisle, Pa.; Gallaudet vs. Penn Military College, at Chester, Pa.; Buffalo vs. Hobart, at Buffalo; Harvard Radio School vs. Camp Devens, at Cambridge.

November 21—Beloit vs. Carroll, at Beloit, Wis.

November 23—Harvard Radio School vs. Princeton Aviation School, at Polo Grounds; California vs. Oregon, at San Francisco; Pittsburgh vs. Georgia Tech., at Pittsburgh; Buffalo vs. Cornell Aviation School, at Buffalo; Fargo vs. Concordia, at Fargo, N. D.; Syracuse vs. Rutgers, at Syracuse (tentative).

November 28—California vs. Stanford, at Berkeley, Cal.

B. C. HAS TWO OFFERS FOR A GAME SATURDAY

Boston College's athletic heads were to decide today upon the Maroon and Gold's gridiron foe for Saturday. Bowdoin wants to come to Alumni Field, while the Naval Reserves of New London seek to battle Boston College on Braves Field.

Harvard has invited Boston College to come to the Stadium for a game November 23. Fordham bid for that date last month and the Rev. Father Meagher, athletic head, while anxious to accept the Crimson offer, will not do anything in the matter until satisfied Fordham is willing to cancel.

HENDRICKS GOING OVER AS K. OF C. SECRETARY

Jack Hendricks, manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, is in New York getting ready to go abroad as a Knights of Columbus secretary. He is enthusiastic over his new position and hopes to be a big help promoting baseball and other games among our 2,000,000 boys over there. Hendricks has a son at a Southern officers' training camp.

YOUNG BRITT IS HELD TO DRAW BY KANSAS

By RINGSIDE.

Frankie (Young) Britt of New Bedford and Rocky Kansas of Buffalo boxed twelve fairly busy rounds to a draw at the Armory A. A. show at the Arena.

Kansas shot away to an early lead, but Britt caught him at the halfway station and had such a wide margin in the ninth and tenth frames the bulk of the fans thought his sprint had won him the decision.

Still there were few dissenting voices when Referee Larry Conley called it an even affair. The little battlers came in at 133 pounds at 9 o'clock and lined up a well-matched pair.

Only in spots was there a whole lot to the scrap. Kansas got home some snappy wallops to Britt's stomach early in the fray, and the smashes slowed up the Whaler. Tickets on Kansas looked good up to the sixth frame, and, be it known, Britt ruled a 10 to 6 favorite.

Britt got going in high starting with the seventh. He shaded Kansas in that round, as well as in the eighth, and in the ninth and tenth did so much damage at close quarters he appeared to take the lead.

Britt was likewise as good as the Buffalo boy in the eleventh and twelfth. He seemed to be entitled to the decision, though his advantage was a slim one at best, and Conley wasn't very far amiss when he rendered a draw verdict.

Charley Parker, that rousing young South Ender, remained on his winning streak. He had Kid Lee of Chelsea for a foe in the semi-final, and administered a terrific lacing to that youth. Parker was in front all the way, and, unannounced, Lee went down for a brief rest in the sixth session.

The Kid came back in such plucky fashion the crowd got behind him, but their rooting went for naught, as Parker kept on punishing him. Naturally, the South End boy got the decision. Figuring he was so badly outweighed, Lee's showing was not half bad.

Dan Kramer of the West End, appearing in his first professional bout, made Kid Wolf of Manchester, N. H., quit in two rounds. There was no Willie Green-Bert Jones scrap. The reason: The latter failed to show up.

LEONARD GOING ON AT NEW YORK'S GALA SHOW

From New York comes word that Benny Leonard and Patsy Cline and Ted (Kid) Lewis and Soldier Bartfield will battle at the big boxing show for the benefit of the War Work Fund at Madison Square Garden, Saturday night, November 16. Johnny Dundee and Jack Britton have also volunteered their services.

Jim Coffroth gives out word that the promised bout between Jack Dempsey and either Willie Meehan or Fred Fulton has been definitely awarded to Kansas City.

Paulson on With Bogash

Portsmouth, N. H., Nov. 6.—Mike Paulson of St. Paul and Louis Bogash of Bridgeport, Ct., meet in a twelve-round bout here tonight.

GOSSIP OF GLOVELAND

—BY RINGSIDE—

CLAY TURNER, Indian lightweight, who looms up as one of the best men in the middleweight division, is again advertised to make his Hub debut. Harry Greb has twice cancelled on the Indian. This time he's matched with Kid Norfolk, Leo P. Flynn's husky dusky battler. The Armory A. A. has the match, and it's ticketed for rendition Tuesday night, Nov. 19.

• • •

SHAVER O'BRIEN of South Boston and Young Strong of New Bedford are underlined to mingle before the Rollo A. C. of Newport, R. I., Friday night. They were originally carded to hook up Nov. 15, but the date has been advanced a week.

• • •

WITH THE lifting of the epidemic ban in New Jersey the oft postponed Johnny Ertle-Frankie Burns battle is underlined for that dear Weehawken Saturday night.

• • •

TOM COWLER is slated to be mussed up by Jack Dempsey before the Olympia A. A. of Philadelphia tonight. Big Tom goes on in place of Battling Levinsky.

• • •

JOE LYNCH, New York featherweight, formerly Johnny Dundee's running mate, who is in France with the 52d Infantry, has been promoted to the rank of sergeant.

FOR participating in ball games with the Logan Square Independent Club in Chicago, in violation of the rules of the National Commission, nine players of the Chicago Americans have been placed on the ineligible list. They are: White, Atz, Donahue, Fiene, Smith, Altrock, Purtell, Owen and Orth.

• • •

CLAIMING that his left shoulder went back on him, Hughey McGovern, brother of Terrible Terry McGovern, quit in the fifth round of his fight with Teddy Maloney of Philadelphia at the Broadway A. C., Philadelphia. (It must have. Did you ever hear of a McGovern quitting without cause?)

• • •

BOTH the Sullivan twins won their bouts at Halifax. Mike stopped his man, Young Mahoney, in eight rounds, and the big twin received the decision over Jim Prendergast in ten rounds. (You know us Al bouts, eh?)

• • •

STRUNK, who looks like a comer for Connie Mack, although only nineteen, learned baseball at Shamokin, Pa., from Lave Cross. (He had a good teacher.)

• • •

JIM BARRY has been made a 10 to 9 favorite over Jim Flynn in their battle at Sand Junction tonight. (Did he warrant being made the favorite?)

• • •

THIRTEENTH game, Class B billiard tournament. Nerraw beat Raffaele 200 to 184. (They're still at it.)

• • •

THE Carlisle Indians arrived in town today ready to duplicate the defeat of Harvard a year ago. Jim Thorpe and Balenti, the great goal kickers, are in the lineup. Balenti kicked four goals from placement against the Navy team last Saturday. (Note—Carlisle won the toss and chose the south goal. Balenti kicked off to Corbett at Harvard's fifteen-yard line. Bet you forgot how the game came out! See tomorrow's column for result.)

• • •

TOMMY QUILL, anxious to score a win over Young Loughrey in their bout next week at the Armory A. A., is training harder than ever. (In commenting on their bout of the week before, the writer said it was even better than the fifteen-round draw between Patsy Sweeney and George McFadden at the Business Men's Club, nine years previous.) We saw that Sweeney-McFadden bout and haven't seen anything to beat it since.

• • •

HEINEY RAFAELE, the San Francisco promoter, is still trying to get Ralph Rose, the big shot-putter, to be a fighter, but big Ralphie says "nothing doing"; he's going to be a lawyer. (Ralph was as sensible as he was good at putting the shot.)

J. T. M.—Don't get the old Eastern confused with the Eastern League. Most any ball player can play in the last named, but only men of Happy's calibre can join the old Eastern.

THE OTHER day we asked if anyone knew a Kid Davis. The following is from William Hickey of No. 52 Milton street, Brockton: "In last Saturday's AMERICAN you wanted to know if anyone ever heard of Kid Davis. I saw him perform in Pontypridd, Wales, in which he kayoed Fred Delaney, lightweight champion of Wales. He was a colored boy from Philadelphia. I am a patron of the Armory A. A. and Commercial A. C., and, in my estimation, there has been very few New England boys who have shown their wares in these places who could stay the limit with him." (Thanks, Mr. Hickey, for the information.)

1890—YES, Tom Lovett pitched for the Boston Nationals about that time. He was considered a strictly first-class man while with the Brooklyn (American Association) team, but when he came to Boston he didn't show very much class.

KILONIS ON HAND FOR HIS BOUT WITH SHIMKUS

John Kilonis, Greek mat whirlwind, arrived in Boston today and is in great shape for his match with Joe Shimkus at the Grand Opera House tomorrow night. "I'll stick inside the rules if he does," stated Kilonis, "but the minute he starts roughing it, the armistice will be off and I'll go after him like a Sammy after a German."

In the other match Pinky Gardner will meet Alex Lundstrom if he is on hand. Otherwise Promoter Tuohey will trot out some other foe.

CRACK BOSTON FIVE IS READY FOR ALL RIVALS

EDITORIAL PAGE OF THE BOSTON AMERICAN NOVEMBER 6, 1918, BOSTON.

Massachusetts, There She Stands

Yesterday was a glorious day for the right. The people of Massachusetts rose to one of the greatest occasions in their generation or in the life of the Republic. No two greater issues have been presented to the people of the Commonwealth since the Civil War than the question whether or not President Wilson ought to be supported and maintained in the leadership in the critical affairs of the world which he has won; and whether our constitution ought to be changed by the Initiative and Referendum so that the people may ACTUALLY control their government as they control it now in theory only.

These two great fundamental questions the people of Massachusetts have given a decisive answer in the true spirit of '76 and '61. If Otis and Warren and Adams and Knox, Sumner, Garrison, Phillips, Parker and Whittier know how Massachusetts voted yesterday their spirits are proud.

While primarily Walsh's election is a vindication of the President, it must not be forgotten that his own splendid character and personality and public record were one of the greatest assets in the campaign for the President's vindication. While he received strength from the President he also gave strength to the President by the personal esteem in which he is universally held by the people of Massachusetts.

His election is itself the vindication which the President sought. But the benefit to America and to Massachusetts will not end in Mr. Walsh's election. For the next six years the opinion and interests of Massachusetts will no longer be misrepresented by both her Senators in Congress. Mr. Walsh, for the next six years, during the critical period of reconstruction after the war, will stand guard over the people's interests, and no influence, whether of fear or favor, will drive him from his post. Fortune and the people of Massachusetts have given him a great honor—and he will reciprocate.

The AMERICAN ventures the prediction that those who were misled by the lying circulars and advertisements into voting against the Initiative and Referendum will soon be glad that a majority of their fellow citizens are not so easily deceived.

Business Is Rushing

The American Eagle

By MAJOR GIST BLAIR, U. S. A.,
Judge Advocate, Department of the Northeast, Boston

THE adoption of the American eagle as the emblem of the United States arose from the eagle on the great seal of the United States (Preble's "History of the Flag of the United States," 3rd edition, page 683), and as early as July 4, 1776, Dr. Benjamin Franklin, John Adams and Thomas Jefferson were selected as a committee to prepare a device for the great seal. They associated with them Mr. Du Simitiere, a French West Indian, a silhouette cutter and well-known painter of miniatures, and after considering many and varied propositions, made an exhaustive report and submitted a device for the great seal, which, however, Congress declined to adopt.

Their report caused many controversies and failed to meet with approval, and the subject of a great seal remained without further action until March 25, 1779, when a new committee was appointed. This committee, after carefully considering the subject, made a report which also failed to meet with favor in Congress, and the question remained without action until 1780, when another committee was appointed which considered the question most carefully and reported a new device to Congress. This also failed to meet with the approval of Congress, but William Barton of Pennsylvania, associated with this committee, had made a suggestion which was incorporated into and formed a part of the great seal of the United States and apparently was received with approval, because, although this committee's report failed to be adopted, when a new committee was selected in 1782, William Barton of Pennsylvania was again associated with this committee, which met and modified the device as suggested by him, and reported on June 20, 1782, what now constitutes the great seal of the United States.

As early as 1652 the New England States used a green pine tree as their favorite emblem. This has now apparently gone out of use as an emblem everywhere in New England except in the State of Maine. Innumerable emblems were proposed and used by the various States and associations of the Colonial period, but the eagle has been used as an emblem from the earliest days of history in almost every country in the world. It was chosen by the Greeks to represent Zeus, and by the Romans to represent Jupiter, and was used on the standards of the armies of Rome from the earliest days of the Republic. Indeed, the eagle was found to be favored by our American Indians when the colonists came to America, and the feathers of the eagle were used in their headdress as a mark of distinction, which curious recognition of the bird must have been without knowledge of the Greek or Roman custom or any information directly transmitted to the Indians of similar recognition given to the eagle in historic times by other nations.

All of the above shows sufficient reason for the adoption of the American eagle by William Barton, by the committee, and by the American Congress as an emblem for the United States, and while no doubt the use of the eagle in the past, so briefly referred to by me, probably had its influence with William Barton in 1782, when he selected the eagle as an emblem on his design for the great seal, nevertheless another and far more potent reason contributed to, if it did not entirely cause, this result. This influential reason was a religious one. Many of the early American colonists believed their coming to America to be due to the direct intervention of Providence, and that they were, while here, being led and cared for by the Almighty. They often compared themselves to the children of Israel in the wilderness.

On one side of this seal which this committee proposed, is a representation of the children of Israel in the wilderness led by a cloud, and from this it is easy to trace the connection of the emblem of the eagle and its adoption by the committee which subsequently approved of it.

The bald eagle of America was the one selected. The female eagle is larger than the male and said to attack and abuse the male. The name "bald eagle" is something of a misnomer, because the head is thickly feathered.

A Tribute to A. Paul Keith

By RT. REV. JOSEPH G. ANDERSON,
Auxiliary Bishop of the Archdiocese of Boston.
(Eulogy delivered at Mr. Keith's funeral.)

His Eminence, Cardinal O'Connell, who is absent from the city and therefore unable to assist at these last sad rites of the church over the body of our departed friend, Mr. Paul Keith, has sent word to me to represent him and to express in his name the deep sorrow that he feels at the sad loss of such a noble character and true type of Christian gentleman.

His Eminence had the greatest admiration for the deceased, as he had known him from the time he was a young student, and was intimately acquainted with the family for many years. It was with deep interest that he watched his growth and development under the kindly, sweet and gentle influence of a truly devoted and Christian mother, and under the inspiring influence and successful career of a wise, upright, noble and honorable father.

He saw with delight the same splendid traits of character which stood forth so prominently in his parents beautifully exemplified and combined in the life of Paul.

The sterling honesty, the noble uprightcousness, the high principles, the conscientious sense of honor and wonderful business acumen that marked the successful career and life of the father were inherited by the son; while the kind, gentle, sweet Christian character of the mother was shown in the other notable qualities that adorned the character of Paul and endeared him to all who knew him.

He was a whole-souled, generous, kind-hearted, devoted and loyal friend; an honorable, upright and noble Christian gentleman who was faithful to his religious duties and proud of his Catholic faith; a public-spirited citizen who never sought the limelight of publicity nor the applause of the multitude in doing his service to the country or the community; because he was too honest, too modest, too genuinely sincere to appeal to these methods, though having in his hands the very power and means by which he made others famous.

On all public occasions for the general good and the public welfare he was always the first to respond, and ready to do his fullest duty as a citizen of the republic. One of his recent acts of public service was his interest and effort for the entertainments and recreation of the soldiers in the various camps of France.

His whole life after the death of his parents was devoted entirely to the developing of the business left by his father. There seemed to be little time in his life for enjoyment or rest.

Occupied solely in a business whose object is to amuse and bring enjoyment into the lives of others, he was entirely wrapped up in his work to the utter exclusion of his own quiet comfort and enjoyment of life. It was this conscientious sense of duty, this devotion to his work, this desire to serve others and to make others happy that made him so forgetful of self.

We all who knew him loved and admired him for his many splendid qualities. All who were associated with him in his business will deeply feel his loss, for his relationship with them was bound by the most sacred tie of friendship. There is no loss like the loss of a true and loyal friend, and all who were thus associated with him claimed him in this intimate union of true and real friendship.

We all mourn the loss of such a splendid type of manhood, stricken down so suddenly in the prime of life, with such talents and opportunities and such a brilliant future.

GERMANY'S TERMS TO FRANCE IN 1871

By Morton Birge

This is the continuation of Article I of the armistice signed at Versailles by Bismarck and Favre on January 28, 1871, the day Paris surrendered, and practically ended the Franco-Prussian War.

EACH of the two armies reserves to itself the right to maintain its authority in the territory which it occupies, and to employ the means which its commandants judge necessary to arrive at that end.

The armistice is equally applied to the naval forces of the two countries, adopting the meridian of Dunkerque as the line of demarcation, to the west of which the French fleet will hold itself, and to the east of which the German vessels of war which are found in eastern waters will retire as soon as they can be notified. The captures which may be made after the conclusion and after the notification of the armistice will be restored; as well as the prisoners which may be made on one side or the other, in engagements which may take place in the interval indicated. The military operations upon the region of the departments of the Doubs, of the Jura and of the Cote d'Or, as well as the siege of Belfort, will continue, independent of the armistice, up to the moment of agreeing upon the line of demarcation, of which the course across the three departments mentioned has been reserved for a subsequent understanding.

ARTICLE 2—The armistice thus agreed upon has for its object to permit the Government of the National Defence to convoke an assembly freely elected, which shall pronounce upon the question, to wit: Whether the war shall be continued, or upon what conditions peace ought to be made.

The assembly will meet in the city of Bordeaux.

Every facility will be given by the commanders of the German armies for the election and meeting of the deputies who are to compose it.

Exterior Defence

ARTICLE 3—There will be made immediately a surrender to the German army by the French military authority of all the forts forming the perimeter of the exterior defence of Paris, as well as of their material of war. The communes and houses situated outside of that perimeter, or between the forts, may be occupied by the German troops as far as a line to be traced by the military commissaries. The ground remaining between that line and the fortified wall of the city of Paris will be forbidden to armed forces of both parties. The manner of surrendering the forts and the course of the line mentioned will form the object of a protocol to be annexed to the present convention.

ARTICLE 4—During the continuance of the armistice the German army will not enter within the city of Paris.

Disarmed Walls

ARTICLE 5—The wall (enceinte) will be disarmed of its cannons, the carriages of which will be transported to the forts to be designated by a commissary of the German army.

ARTICLE 6—The garrisons (army of the line, mobile guards, and marines) of the forts and of Paris, will be prisoners of war, save a division of 12,000 men, which the military authority in Paris will preserve for interior service.

The troops, prisoners of war, will deposit their arms, which will be collected in the designated places, and delivered according to rule by commissaries, according to cantons; the troops will remain in the interior of the city, the wall of which they may not pass during the armistice. The French authorities will have charge of watching that every individual belonging to the army and to the mobile guard, will remain consigned to the interior of the city.

To Be Continued.

PATRIOTIC PIG FARM

Perhaps you think that's a wrong use of words. Could a pig farm be patriotic? Just wait till you learn about the pig farm of Mrs. Arthur Scott Burden, and how she and her millionaire neighbors answered Mr. Hoover's appeal by furnishing each of their less fortunate neighbors with a pig for their back yard, and you will say yes! There's the germ of a big idea in it, too—read it and then get a pig for your own back yard! All about it in the next

Peace Is Very Gentle.
Italy's Sunny Day.
Skinning Citizens.
Cromwell's Method.

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1918.

The man who did not vote with Woodrow Wilson yesterday, if he should come back in 100 years and read the history of the world as it will be written, will ask himself, "What was the matter with me, what got into my head? How could I live in the most important day that the world has known since the first monkey started out to be a man, and not know enough to do my share in the crisis?"

The election being over, the world knows a little more than it did before about the intelligence of the voter and the success of popular government.

The most pleasing thing to contemplate just now is the intense delight of our good friends in Italy, their victory and their joy is great.

They have conquered the peace that they wanted. They will get back the territory taken away from them. They had the satisfaction of driving the armies of Austria, capturing hundreds of thousands of men and thousands of guns before peace came.

The sunny day has come for Italy at last. The oldest Italians can remember the day in January, 1850, when King Victor Emmanuel thrilled the Parliament of Italy, describing the Italian cry of anguish, "Il grido del dolore!" as he announced that former war against Austria. Never was greater excitement seen in any assembly than on that occasion.

And never was disappointment more powerfully expressed than by the Italian patriot, Ricastroli, when the treacherous peace of Villa Franca put an end for the time to Italy's hopes. "After that peace," said Ricastroli, "I spat upon my life." "Ho sputato sulla mia vita."

Italy has held to the idea of liberty, in good times and bad, and now, safety, power, permanent national development have come.

North and northeast the boundaries of Italy will be made by this peace what they should be.

And to the east across the Adriatic, where many convenient ports and refugees for enemy ships have threatened Italy's unprotected coast, Italy will be protected as she should be.

Germany has the terms of which peace can be made.

The nations ask, "What will Germany do?" The answer is, "What can she do, but accept the terms" with Russian insanity on the east of her, and enemies everywhere, on all sides of her, Germany has the choice of surrender or suicide. And nations do not commit suicide.

As you read the terms that Austria has accepted, you echo, perhaps, the opinion that they are very drastic.

As a matter of fact, such terms in ancient warfare would have been considered the mildest, gentlest terms imaginable.

In history not so ancient, besieged cities, after suffering hunger and thirst for a certain period, would offer unconditional surrender, if the lives of the citizens were spared. That was refused usually, and when the city was captured, all were massacred, men, women and children. It happened not once, but thousands of times. It was the regular thing.

And William the Conqueror, cornerstone of modern British greatness, added a touch of his own after capturing one city, by taking the principal citizens, having them skinned, and hanging their hides on the city wall. They had insulted the mother of the conqueror, who happened to be the daughter of a humble tanner. Those who worry about "illegitimate war children" may remember with comfort that the conqueror was illegitimate, but prospered.

Read in Winwood Reade's "Martyrdom of Man," about the siege and conquest of Carthage. Only dead bodies were left to tell the tale of the defenders. The city was levelled to the ground, the site on which it stood ploughed and salt scattered, so that the grass might not grow.

Or read in Ferrero's history of Rome about the capture of the Jewish city in Caesar's day, how men, surviving the most desperate defence, killed their women to save them, and then killed themselves.

The peace that we call "terribly severe" would have seemed as mild as mush and milk to our ferocious ancestors.

Read Cromwell's brief message to the English Parliament, after he had, as he put it, "pacified Ireland." Short was his message:

"I shot every tenth man, the rest I sent to the galleys, the monks I knocked on the head."

The world has become much gentler now, only taking guns, submarines, warships, and disbanding enemy armies to keep them out of mischief.
